Night Classes In Shop Work To Be Held At Stirling High School

Open To The Young Men of Community — Course In English For Polish Veterans

Night classes in Farm Mechanics and General Shop work for the young men of the Village and surrounding community will again be sponsored by the Stirling Board of Education at the local High School during the winter months. Mr. C. A. Wells told the members of the Board at their monthly meeting on Monday night that he had had numerous inquiries concerning the course, of which he will again have charge. A fee of $5.00 per person will be charged, with a rebate of $2.00 to those attending 75% or more of the classes. The fee is payable at the time of enrolment.

The meeting was presided over by H. R. Tompkins, who was supported by J. B. Belshaw, R. E. Fox, M. J. Black, C. I. Hutton, Dr. E. A. Carleton, Walter Wright and R. A. Patterson.

Night Classes For Polish Veterans

The Board of Education will also foster night classes in basic English for the Polish Veterans who are employed by farmers in the community, providing the attendance does not fall consistently below 10. Principal J. L. Good of the High School will have charge of the class, which will be opened in November, and continue for twenty weeks.

Principal J. L. Good submitted a request for the purchase of an English-French dictionary for Miss Muirhead and two English dictionaries for use in the Junior grades, as well as renewal subscriptions to National Geographic and Practical Home Economics. Principal C. A. Wells of the Public School stated that Inspector McGuire had recommended the Board should spend $25.00 per class room in Library books. He also pointed out to the Board the need for a couple small radios in the Public School to enable the pupils to benefit from the weekly broadcasts in music, health, literature and social studies sponsored by the Ontario Department of Education. The purchase of Library books and two small radios was authorized by the Board with the purchase of the latter being left in the hands of the purchasing committee.

The purchase of a set of Art books and a supply of folding paper for Miss Huffman, a small drill press vise and some rough lumber was also authorized.

Reporting for the Property Committee, Mr. J. B. Belshaw listed a number of minor needed repairs about the schools that were needed and stated they were being looked after.

Rally Day At St. Andrew's

E. W. Tummon, of Foxboro, Delivers Outstanding Address—Present Certificates

Special Rally Day services were held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, with Rev. W. H. V. Walker in charge of the programme sponsored by the Board of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Societies.

Mr. E. W. Tummon, of Foxboro, delivered a forceful and challenging address on the subject, "Getting The Most Out of Going To Church". The speaker during his remarks stated man lives by work, play, love and worship. Man has always been searching for something or some one to worship. To worship is to meet and communicate with God. By meeting and communicating with God we come to know his worth. Our first step in worshipping God must be mental — by filling our minds with the things that are in the heart. Secondly, we can worship God with our feelings, our attributes and sympathies. There are several things which we should do to help us find God in church. First, prepare to meet Him before we come; secondly, have a sympathetic attitude towards the Order of Service and finally going to church with an active voice. He closed his address with reference to his personal experiences while on a visit to a city in North Carolina, where the typical farewell greeting heard in all places of business on Saturday was, "See you in church tomorrow," and where everyone went to church.

Misses Carolyn Rollins and Isabelle Fox recited the Ten Commandments and the Beatitudes, respectively, while Miss Gena Sperry presented certificates for Scripture and Catechism memory work to Carolyn Rollins, Muriel McGee, Eleanor Fox and Isabel Fox.

A special musical number was contributed by Misses Mary Agnes Fox, Lois McGee, Arline Tummon, Marilyn Eggleton and Doreen Fox.

Uncle Hy Says

(Copyright 1947, H. M. Moore)

October's child is born to woe if you should let his tonsils grow, and if you let him out of hand, you're in for trouble understand, for he has will and he has traits which spell much trouble for his mates.

October's child is big and strong, because to fall he does belong, for cutting wood and shovelling snow before his teeth begin to show, at winter's storms he's apt to scorn, no sun beat down when he was born.

October's child is born to woe, at least the rhymesters tell us so, if woe is trouble I agree since trouble is a part of me, because this month as trees turn gold, I'm one year nearer growing old.

Letter to Editor

Dear Sir:

It is good once again to see the "Welcome" sign out for emigrants from the Old Land. Canada needs them. More so the Banner Province of Ontario, with its empty acres, its vast, virgin timberlands, its busy cities.

It took the ingenious mind of Premier Drew of Ontario to set the pace for this new migration with his novel and daring air emigration scheme. Under this plan over seven thousand of the best of the Old Land's youth have registered for passage, and over one thousand have already arrived and are becoming rapidly settled. This plan is setting an example to other Dominions whose waste places cry out for settlement.

But Ontario is leading the van. Every time a sky ship touches down at Malton airport, outside Toronto, Ont., it adds at least forty new Canadians to the Dominion's twelve millions.

How different is this to what it was when I came to Ontario over forty-three years ago! No seven-league boots for me, which would transport me over the Atlantic in less than twenty-four hours. It took me eight days to cross, and that in a vermin-ridden cattle boat. On landing in Ont. in the blackness of a cold March night, I was met by strangers who filled my hungry stomach with leftovers and handed me a farm job at eight dollars a month and keep, for five o'clock the next day.

Farm work was hard work in those days. But it did me no harm. I had none of the amenities of this modern age. After almost three years on the land, I graduated in turn to bush work, railroad construction hand, hod carrier, etc., etc., then newspaper!

That was the acme of my desire. After thirty-five years, I am retired on a competence, with a home of my own, a family happily married, a nice garden in which to laze and dream of that far-off day when I shook the dust of the humdrum Lancashire textile town from my feet.

As I said before, what a contrast to now. Air emigrants to Ontario land after sixteen hours, are whisked by motor car to the gay city of Toronto, and there handed a banquet and a job before they have had time to recover their breath. If they cannot make good after that, well . . . I wonder what their pioneer forbears would say!

What Others Say!

THE FALL FAIRS

Life is more worthwhile and more satisfying when one lives in a good community. It perks one up when all around him are clean farms, on which are growing good crops of the latest and best varieties. It makes one proud of his community, and his own property worth more, if well bred livestock are grazing in the fields all over the area, if roadsides are kept tidy and the public buildings, such as churches, schools and halls, look as if somebody cared.

Most people prefer tidiness and progress. When they do not they are ill or their morale has weakened and they need a day at the Fall Fair. It is stimulating to see neighbours leading out high class livestock and exhibiting seeds of the newer and improved varieties.

It awakens fresh and wholesome interests to stand before the educational displays and observe what new and better things departments of agriculture are suggesting and what time and labor saving gadgets industry has made available for the home or farm. —Farmer's Advocate.

DANGEROUS RURAL MAIL BOXES?

Commenting on a protest to the Postmaster-General that rural mail boxes endanger motor traffic and are unsightly, The Financial Post says:

"Most highway users, including mail box owners themselves, must agree that this criticism seems justified. In many cases, boxes and their posts come unpleasantly close to traffic and in no case are they decorative."

"Original regulations regarding location were based on horse delivery, the boxes being mounted in such a position that mail could be delivered or picked up without the courier dismounting, turning, or having to leave the right side of his route. With motor delivery a little extra manoeuvring is not so important, though even without this, as at present, it has not always been easy to secure applicants for the job, and after tendering, many rue their bargain. If delivery is to be more difficult, especially during winters of heavy snow, this "free" service of the Dominion Government may prove costlier."

"The important thing, however, is that the present situation be reviewed in the light of modern conditions. After all it is about 40 years since the system was first inaugurated in Canada."

SILLY HORN BLOWING

The ridiculously silly idea of wedding parties tearing through the streets with automobile horns blowing is surely something that can be stopped. The police would merely need to stop the car in lead and make a request to stop the horn blowing and we feel certain the wedding party would stop the tooting in general consideration of others. —Huntingdon

In Hymen's Bonds

Many guests attended the marriage in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, of Margaret June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl D. Crosby, to Mr. Allison MacLean Coll, son of Rev. Dr. Norman Coll and Mrs. Coll, of Ottawa. The groom's father and Rev. D. C. Amos officiated, with Mr. William Connor at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a graceful gown of bridal brocade, with finger-tip veil held with white flowers, and carried a cascade of white chrysanthemums and pink roses. Miss Winnifred Stirling, maid of honour, chose pale blue crepe, and, Miss Norma Coll was in pale yellow. Both wore bronze-colored plumes in their hair, and carried cascades of bronze baby chrysanthemums. Mr. Gordon B. Coll was groomsmen for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Melville P. Carson and Mr. B. M. Hardy, both of Ottawa.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will live at 112 Fairmont Ave., Ottawa.

Junior Red Cross Enrolment Week

A record total of 900,000 members is the objective of Junior Red Cross Enrolment Week, October 5th - October 10th, as young Canadians in school rooms across the Dominion pledge "to keep the rules of health and to help others who need help."

For many in the primary grades who have only recently learned to write, their names on the Junior Red Cross register will be their first official signatures.

To older children and high school students, Enrolment Week is a familiar annual event. It is their opportunity to join anew the world-wide youth organization of 32,000,000 members which works for health, good citizenship and international understanding.

After school hours in 29,158 classroom Branches, Canadian Juniors plan and organize their own Red Cross activities under a unified five-point programme including: the promotion of health; relief of child victims of war; entertainment and comfort of veterans in hospital; crippled children's work in Canada; international exchange of correspondence. Members take their cause seriously, which is one of the reasons why membership is renewable each year.

"Although some students can look back on ten or more years of membership since kindergarten days," explains Miss Jeanne E. Browne, National Director of the movement, "Junior Red Cross is not a matter of habit."

NEWS FOR THE BUSY FARMER

FARMERS MAY PLAN FARM REPAIR SHOP

Organizations which service farm machinery, and farmers themselves are now able to make post-war plans, says G. N. Denike, Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, Sask. Materials, tools and general equipment, which are now more readily available, which better enables farmers to have on their own farms a workshop sufficiently well equipped to do a number of major repairs to their farm machinery and equipment. Such items as tire and grease changing, minor adjustments and tune-up to engines and working parts can be undertaken. Many of the small repair jobs on the farm can be done in such a workshop, and these are only limited by the skill of the operator and the time and cost involved.

On the other hand, farm machinery and equipment, in order to do the more accurate and specialized jobs of modern farming, is becoming more complicated and intricate. The swing toward automotive type of designing in most farm machinery with emphasis on hydraulic and electric controls of attached implements and with high pressure seals and high speed bearings, must be met with a thorough knowledge of what this means to the farmer. In progressive farming communities, provision is being made so that all the principal machines can be overhauled by experts in special shops where the tools and the skill are available to do a thorough job on each class of equipment. Machines such as tractors, combines, seeding and tillage equipment, haying and power harvesting equipment, are becoming increasingly specialized and more difficult to overhaul and adjust. Special tools and a complete knowledge of the particular machine are required if this type of equipment is to be maintained in first-class condition. Modern farm practice, with its more intricate machinery, necessitates the establishment at central points in each farming community, of specially equipped shops where overhaul and repair work can be done.

In this modern machine age, farmers must have a thorough knowledge of all that is involved in their production programme, and those who know how to make machinery work to the highest efficiency will get the greatest return from its use. Good operation of well-serviced machinery will assure greater saving.

PREVENT SPREAD POULTRY DISEASES

To prevent the spreading of communicable poultry diseases, an Order in Council has been issued, requiring that every owner or operator of a poultry processing plant, or poultry killing plant, or the management of establishments where live poultry are received for any purpose, must clean and disinfect all such crates received at the plants. After each use as a live-poultry crate, and before leaving the plant, all crates must be thoroughly cleaned and dipped for at least two minutes in a solution of two per cent formalin, or other approved disinfectant. Unless this is done, the crates must not be removed from the plant.

The expression "Live-poultry Crate" means any crate, box, receptacle, or container used for conveying or transporting live poultry. The words "Approved Disinfectant" means a pest control product that is registered under Pest Control Products Act and has a strength of not less than two per cent.

MAY SOON SPRAY ORCHARDS FROM AIR

Orchards in British Columbia may soon be sprayed from the air. An Okanagan Valley organization has purchased a helicopter and trails are being made under the supervision of the Dominion Entomological and Chemical Laboratory, Summerland and the Canadian Army Experimental Station, Suffield, Alberta, to assess it as a means of applying insecticides to fruit trees.

The helicopter has several advantages over fixed-wing aircraft. It can travel at much lower speed, although it treats a ten-acre orchard in a few minutes and can land in a small clearing 50 feet in diameter, the down-draft from the rotor produces a turbulence of "rebound" that improves underleaf coverage; it is less dangerous to operate in this type of work than a fixed-wing aircraft. Though both dusts and sprays are being applied probable that sprays will prove more satisfactory.

Officers of the Summerland Laboratory, as well as those of the Provincial Horticultural Branch at Kelowna and Penticton, have also been conducting trials with new types of high-speed ground-borne equipment. These include a turbine blower machine, three types of mist duster-sprayers and a steam aerosol generator. After having been suitably modified all have given satisfactory pest control. The Okanagan Valley Investigators plan to build a new machine that will incorporate the best features of the various types so far examined. Perhaps in the not too distant future the high-pressure sprayer with its hand-operated spray guns, standard, equipment for orchard pest control since 1910, may be considered obsolete, observe the Entomologists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

WHEAT EXCELLENT AS LIVE-STOCK FEED

It is not many years since wheat was considered unsuitable as a live-stock feed. It was branded as a starchy "hot" feed, too concentrated to be fed with safety. Gradually experimental evidence has reversed this opinion and now wheat is accepted as an excellent feed when properly handled.

Wheat compares favourably in chemical analysis with the other feed grains, being lower in fibre and higher in protein than either barley or oats. It is, like these other grains, low in minerals, vitamins and too low in protein to serve as a complete feed. Proper supplementation is essential if full efficiency is to be obtained.

The nutritive excellence of wheat has been borne out in exacting feeding trials conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alberta, and at other experimental stations, says H. T. Fredeen of the Lacombe Station. When single grains were fed, pigs made the fastest and most efficient gains on wheat, while barley ranked second and oats third. The most economical gains, however, were obtained by feeding a mixture of the three grains, which emphasizes the importance of feeding a properly balanced ration.

Wheat also proved more palatable than these other grains, and in various "free choice" experiment pigs demonstrated a decided preference for wheat. However, in carcass quality, wheat-fed hogs were slightly overfleshed as compared with barley-fed hogs. This, too, is overcome by feeding a proper mixture of grain and by adequate supplementation.

What is proper supplementation? For, swine, skim milk or butter milk fed along with the grain at the rate of two to three pounds of milk per pound of grain or a commercial supplement fed at the rate recommended by the manufacturer, will supply the necessary protein, while a pound of salt and 1 pound of ground limestone will supply the necessary mineral. Vitamins in the form of pichard oil or well cured alfalfa must be supplied if the pigs are fed indoors.

The best results with wheat have been obtained when mixed with other grains, and for swine it is not recommended that wheat should constitute more than three-quarters of the total grain in the ration, the other quarter being made up by oats. Wheat being heavy grain must be fed by weight rather than volume, to avoid overfeeding. Degree of fineness of grinding is also important. If ground too fine it tends to pastiness and may cause digestive disorders.

For swine, wheat should be coarsely to medium ground; for cattle coarsely ground or rolled, while for sheep no grinding is necessary.

Wheat can also serve a useful place in the rations of cattle, sheep and horses. The same precautions—feeding by weight rather than volume, adequate supplementation and close attention to fineness of grinding must be observed.

With present prices, it is not economical to feed high quality wheat, but large quantities of feed grains are produced annually which are suitable for live-stock feeding. Indeed, shrunken or frozen wheat has proved in many experiments to be superior in feeding quality, due to the higher protein content and to the somewhat greater fibre content, which makes these feed grains a less concentrated and safer feed.

HASTINGS COUNTY FIELD CROP MEETING

At the farm of Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson, Foxboro, on Thursday, September 11th, a well-attended Crop Improvement meeting got under way sharp at seven o'clock. Mr. Elmer Post, West

Huntingdon, was the fortunate winner of the two pounds of Ladino clover which was presented by the Crop Improvement Association.

Mr. Ken Falls, Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, was introduced by A. O. Dalrymple, Agricultural Representative, who stated that the idea of holding the meeting was to acquaint the farmers with the latest information regarding pastures and hybrid corn. Mr. Falls dealt at some length on the comparative values of the various clovers and grasses in pasture mixtures. He mentioned the fact that he felt quite justified in recommending that some alfalfa be added to the mixtures in the districts of Hastings where the soil was of a limestone nature and where as a result alfalfa grew quite readily.

The group then visited the corn field, after which Mr. Ketcheson gave a demonstration of his new pick-up baler as well as the self-propelled combine and other machinery.

Mr. Wilfred Forestell, President of the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association, in speaking to the group, expressed the thanks of everyone present in being able to visit the Ketcheson farm and see the excellent display of labour saving machinery.

The officers and executive were appointed under the Conservation and Reforestation Act passed by the provincial legislature in 1946.

Mr. J. H. Richardson, conservation engineer of the Department of Planning and Development, Toronto, took charge of the meeting until the permanent officers were elected. Mr. Richardson addressed the meeting briefly explaining and outlining the many phases of the Act and leading a question and answer period.

It was pointed out that every municipality in the watershed will be a local authority in itself and will work with the main executive in their various problems.

Week Oct. 5th To 11th

The week beginning October 5th is Junior Red Cross Week across Canada. This organization came into being a quarter of a century ago and since that time has grown and developed all over the world until now there are approximately 30,000,000 members in fifty-two countries.

Based on sound educational principles, it functions in the schools with the teachers acting as Directors. Branches are active in elementary, secondary, and Normal Schools, with the pupils themselves taking the responsibility for the meetings.

Junior Red Cross has, as its motto, "I Serve", and seeks to instill in its members a realization of the need for healthy bodies, as well as ideals of services to others and international friendliness. One teacher, expressing the opinion of others across Canada, stated: "Junior Red Cross has awakened a new interest in health in this class. It is a great aid to the teacher as it focuses the pupils' attention on health habits in an interesting way and holds their interest once awakened. In this way a new desire to acquire useful health habits is built up." In Ontario, during the last school year, 361,368 school pupils belonged to 11,485 Branches of Junior Red Cross. Now is the time for enrolment under the familiar and beloved banner — the Red Cross on the white field.

Allan Mills W.I.

Mrs. John McKeown opened her home to the members and visitors of the W.I. on Wednesday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Cosby, the meeting was in charge of Mrs. G. Meiklejohn and opened with "O Canada", the Ode and the Institute Creed.

The roll call, "A Recipe for Happiness" was well responded to, and the minutes were given by Mrs. W. Barlow. Mrs. Geo. Eastwood convener for Social Welfare was absent owing to illness and this department was in charge of Mrs. Meiklejohn.

It was decided to hold a social evening on October 29th, in the basement of St. Mark's Church, in the form of a Halloween party, programme committee, Mrs. F. Cosby, G. Meiklejohn, G. Williams and A. Burklitt.

Lunch of pumpkin pie and sandwiches will be served by W. I. members. Mrs. W. J. Barlow gave the topic on "Sociability of yesterday and today." Several responded to current events. Mrs. Christensen rendered a vocal solo and Mrs. Ralph McKeown entertained with an instrumental number. A reading "My Neighbour Across The Road", was given by Mrs. G. Webb. Mrs. A. Reid gave a reading "Sighing or Singing".

A contest was put on and refreshments were served.

Protection Secured
By Immunization

Sponsored by the Health League of Canada in co-operation with health departments throughout the Dominion, National Immunization Week opens on October 5th. This annual campaign is designed to drive home the fact that certain diseases which annually take a heavy death toll can be prevented by immunization, and the fact that immunization is not as widely applied as it should be.

Probably because poliomyelitis strikes with epidemic force, this disease has received considerable public attention. Yet in 1946, an epidemic year, there were fewer cases of poliomyelitis and fewer deaths from it than there were cases and deaths from diphtheria and whooping cough. In that year there were no less than 7,671 cases of whooping cough and 226 deaths from it, and 2,535 cases of diphtheria with a death toll of 229. On the other hand there were 2,527 cases of poliomyelitis and only 177 deaths.

The figures for whooping cough and diphtheria show a considerable drop from the figures for 1945 when there were 12,192 cases of whooping cough and 457 deaths, and 2,786 cases of diphtheria and 270 deaths. In 1945 there were but 384 cases of poliomyelitis and 24 deaths, providing beyond doubt that this disease, against which there is no immunization, is not as widespread a menace as the two other two diseases against which a vaccine and a toxoid do offer full protection. While smallpox has practically been eliminated in Canada, it remains a latent danger since there is no natural immunity from it, and the Health League stresses that vaccination is still the only protection against the disease and therefore should be neglected.

It is against whooping cough and diphtheria, however, that the Health League is concentrating its campaign and the fact that the death rate from these diseases continues to be high is proof of the necessity of emphasizing the vital importance of immunization. —Toronto Telegram.

Starts New Course

Ontario High School boys in Grades X, XI and XII this fall are learning their duties and rights as citizens. Instead of the intricacies of small-arms drill—but most of them still may belong to the school cadet corps if they wish.

The new citizenship course, announced last Aug. by Premier Drew, Ontario Minister of Education, replaces the compulsory cadet training sponsored by the National Defence Department during the war.

The boys may still drill as cadets, but must do so on their own time, after school hours. Cadet work will not exempt them from the citizenship classes.

A kitten nearly stole the show from the Beaver Cove when the brand new Canadian Pacific cargo liner arrived at Montreal from Liverpool on her maiden voyage. The pussy, becoming excited, overstepped the dock and fell into the harbor just as the ship was coming alongside. The kitten is shown, lower right, with eight of its nine lives still intact but very wet after longshoremen succeeded in pulling it to safety on a rope to which it clung after falling overboard. Upper picture shows Beaver Cove coming alongside with her sister ship, Beaver Glen, in background. At lower left, Capt. B. B. Grant, master of the Beaver Cove, is showing George A. Walker, K.C., vice-president of the C.P.R., through the wheel house shortly after the maiden voyage was completed. Arrival of the Beaver Cove at Montreal completed restoration of the Canadian Pacific's fast London-Canada service, three other newly-constructed ships having joined the run last year. The five ships of the pre-war Canadian Pacific Beaver fleet were lost during hostilities.

DISAPPEARING DOLLARS

Though there has been a drop of $5,600,000 in the seventh month and another of $18,000,000 in the sixth month in Canada's adverse trading position with the U.S. and these have taken place without any drastic action to stop the flow of such U.S. dollars across the border, yet this improvement has not changed the situation in regard to the present serious currency crisis, it is learned on Parliament Hill, so that the opinion here seems to be something drastic may still be forthcoming in order to correct the situation. Two of the most persistent stories here claim that this situation may possibly bring some sort

GIFTS FOR PRINCESS

The popular suggestion that all food parcels for Britain should be freed from postage costs as a gift for HRH Princess Elizabeth on the occasion of her wedding is a topic of much favourable comment here. It is pointed out that such parcels at the moment are restricted to a 20-pound limit and the postage costs range from 25 cents for the first pound to $2.50 for parcels from 15 to 20 pounds. If freed from such costs, the expectation is that much needed Canadian food would be donated to the British masses by people in this country who can easily make such gifts.

BUT HOW MUCH IS LEFT?

The Canadian Government has reported that total labor income for the half of 1947 is now estimated at $2,845 million and this is 17% or $410 million more than labor income in Canada in the same period last year, with more than half of this increase having occurred in manufacturing and trade. These two groups accounted for $219 million of the difference of $410 million. On a relative basis the largest increases took place in logging, water transportation and construction where labor incomes in the first half of 1947 was from 30% to 40% higher than in the first half of 1946. Agriculture showed a decrease of almost 30% which was due entirely to a reduction in the number of workers. Wage rates of male farm help, as reported here, increased from $96.27 on May 15th, 1946, to $103.96 on May 15th, 1947.

UNOFFICIALLY RATIONING

Somehow or other, it is learned in Ottawa, reports that the prices of shoes may rise by as much as 25% has brought a wild rush for shoes in stores across Canada and retailers have been compelled to restrict the number of shoes which they can sell to customers, a sort of unofficial rationing system being created. People are buying two or more pairs of shoes at one time and retailers fear that this may lower their stocks to a dangerous point, with the biggest stampede into shoe stores being reported in the larger cities.

BRAINS AND WAR

An important group of British scientists have paid a visit to Ottawa, where it is learned that they will make a tour of Canadian defence research installations, including the atomic development and research plant at Chalk River near this capital, with their visits disclosing that Britain was carrying out research on the development of projectiles and that a range for test purposes was being built in Australia. Likewise, it is understood that Canada's northland was being studied for possible sites for such experimental ranges, though there was no thought of building such ranges at the moment.

LESS TAXES?

The Canadian Government is reported to have had a surplus of $443,699,258 in its financial operation for the five-months period from April 1st to August 31st and now it is asked if this might not mean that the drive to lower costs of government may prove as successful this year that by the time the next budget is made lower taxes may be an actuality rather than an ambition.

SAID IN THE CAPITAL

"The misuse of the veto, which we all so much regret, has been a disturbed symptom of failure to reach agreed solutions brought before the United Nations," said Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Secretary of State for External Affairs.

"We all recognize the interdependence of our world community and our minds are attracted to the idea of one world," declared in an address here Dr. J. A. Gilsen of the United Nations Association of Canada.

"If the consumers are reasonable in the use of butter and purchase only normal requirements, prices are not likely to advance unduly," stated R. C. Smellie, president National Dairy Council of Canada, at a meeting in this capital.

"The wage earner has been fighting a losing battle to maintain his family budget under present wage levels," remarked CCF leader M. J. Coldwell in a statement here.

"We must immediately press for an upward revision of salaries throughout the service in all classifications if the service is not to suffer great hardships," commented Harry Taber, president, Civil Service Association, Ottawa.

"By preserving the political rights and teaching history we are helping in the Battle of Canada which will be won on the ground of Canadian history," said Major Gustave Lancelot, Dominion Archivist, in an address in the capital.

"I would venture to say that 75 to 80 per cent of all cases which come before this court are due to drinking," Magistrate Joachim Sauve declared in Ottawa.

WEEKLY WIND-UP

The lifting of price control is expected to bring more lumber for housing and to smash the "black market". It is whispered along Parliament Hill. Persistent rumors about the Canadian dollar being devalued, in face of denials, are continuing to be heard.

A bright future for television and frequency modulation in the radio field was forecast here by an executive of a big radio organization and he claimed that in the not-too-distant future television sets would be as numerous in homes in Canada as radios are to-day.

Toys for British and continental children are being made by Canadian soldiers in their own spare time for shipment overseas in time for Christmas.

At a meeting here it was suggested that there was a possibility of holding the 1956 Winter Olympic Games in Canada.

The Speaker of the House of Commons, Hon. Gaspard Fauteux, is in England where he is engaged in studying procedural methods of the British Parliament in speeding up the operations of that body.

Judging from the reaction of women in this capital, the new fashion styles for this fall are not popular with a great many women, with some even picketing stores in protest.

The wearing of winter dress will be compulsory for members of Canada's armed services on and after Oct. 6th.

It looks like the storm which blew up recently in several resignations of officials in high ranking positions with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is going to end, though rumors suggested that it was an "internal revolt" against policy, and this is now denied.

Hello Homemakers: Many of us are resuming the job of packing lunch boxes now that cooler weather is here and school routine has been re-established. When the lunch box comes down off the shelf, it is also time to take stock of suitable menus. The well-planned mid-day meal for a growing child cannot be over-emphasized — like-wise the one for the office worker. Some schools and factories serve soups and beverages at moderate prices, thus eliminating the need for carrying thermos. If this service is not available or is found to be costly, it is advisable to make use of the standard lunch box containing a thermos and fill it every day with a wholesome beverage or soup.

SANDWICH IDEAS

1. Chopped meat and gravy: Put leftover cooked meat through a food chopper and moisten with thick gravy.
2. Scrambled eggs with cottage cheese or tomato. Add 2 tbsps. cottage cheese or tomato (chopped) to 2 beaten eggs. Scramble as usual, and cool before putting in sandwich.
3. Cottage cheese: Mix equal amounts of cottage cheese and chopped spinach with a little onion.
4. Chopped prunes or peaches mixed with cream cheese and moistened with skim milk.
5. Chopped bacon and mashed, cooked kidney beans — flavoured with a little onion.
6. Peanut butter spreads: (1) Add half quantity of diced apples. (2) Add 1/2 mashed banana. (3) Mix with shredded carrot.

CARROT AND BARLEY SOUP

1/2 cup barley, 5 cups cold water, 1 cup diced carrots, 2 tbsps. chopped onion, salt and pepper, 3/4 cups.

Soak barley in water overnight. Cook in same water for 45 mins. or until tender. Add carrots, onion and seasoning about 30 mins. before end of cooking time. Stir frequently, add milk and when hot put in thermos. This makes three servings.

THE SUGGESTION BOX

Mrs. S. M. says: By all means group the family around the dining room table for study and hobby work. Use a 200-watt study lamp over the table to save electricity and provide adequate light.

Mrs. J. T. says: Taking spots off a crepe dress can be done easily if cleaner is used immediately. I found that a little at a time did not leave a ring, or do it in the open air so the liquid evaporates quickly.

Mrs. N. S. says: You can sharpen scissors by cutting through fine sandpaper several times.

PURCHASE PRICES

In revealing that the average purchase price of new motor vehicles in Canada was considerably higher last year than in any previous year for which a measurement has been made, the authorities in Ottawa have disclosed that the price of a passenger car averaged $1,548 and for a commercial vehicle $1,726. In pre-war years, the average selling price of passenger cars had fluctuated within the $1,000 to $1,100 range. There was a tendency for the average purchase price to move in an upward direction throughout the years 1932 to 1940 but the sharpest rise had occurred in 1941 when the average reached $1,302. Increases were more gradual in 1942 and 1943. No average selling price of motor cars are available for 1944 and 1945 but in 1946 the prices had moved up to $1,548, with the remark that prices were undoubtedly considerably higher, even for comparable models, in 1946 than in the late 1930's. Since 1932, purchase prices of new trucks and buses have risen more sharply than those for passenger cars. However, in this latter case, it is reported officially that there is a much wider price range in these and at least a part of this increase may be accounted for by greater output of heavier and improved types of transport vehicles, both trucks and buses.

INTERMEDIATE TITLE WON BY PORT HOPE

Napanee, Sept. 22nd — Before the largest crowd of the season, Port Hope Ontarios battled their way to a 4-3 win over Napanee Athletics here Saturday night to take the Eastern Ontario intermediate baseball play-off round, undefeated, after winning the first game at home 1-0, and making a four-all tie here in 12 innings. Napanee scored three runs in the fourth. The visitors got one in the sixth, while Stan McTaggart held his rivals to three hits up to the end of the seventh.

WHITE ROCK TRAIL

By J. Allan Dunn

CHAPTER IX

SYNOPSIS—Will MacLeod and his sister Marion had fled their uncle's trading post at Bison Crossing when sent by Alexander MacLeod to White Rock to deliver a message to Nipegos, who still practised witchcraft. Marion and Bill were hiding in a cottage near Nipegos. Before Dick reached White Rock he was shot by a half-breed Kinoceti, who wanted to get the award for Bill's capture. Marion made a daily visit to Nipegos, taking him broth and other food. On a visit to Nipegos Marion learned that some friend was dying on the trail. Bill and Marion set out to find him. They arrived and found Dick with blood all over him and practically frozen to death, lying by the dying fire. They made plans to rush him back to White Rock. After taking him to their cottage they read the note and found that the Mounties were on their trail. Bill left to hide in a cave. When the Mounties arrived he believed that the unconscious Dick was Bill, and stayed to watch him. Kinoceti and his friends saw Bill headed for the cave, left a guard and set out for White Rock.

He saw, as O'Rourke had seen, the evidence of dogs lately fed—and gone. He knew where, too. He looked through the window of the cabin and saw Marion MacLeod, in a gingham dress that, unlike the raiment the squaw wore set off her lithe loveliness. She was dusting the room.

Kinoceti motioned back his trio. They had brought meat with them, and they sought shelter and ate it, relapsing to somnolence. Kinoceti tried the front door. It opened, and he went into the inner room.

The girl started back at the sight of him, and Kinoceti grinned, the lifted lip puckering to the scar, so that his dog teeth showed. He summoned his best memories of school. This was to be an occasion.

"Here there is nothing for you to sell, Miss Marion," he said, and cursed silently at his use of the "Miss." "Things are different here, at White Rock, where your brother runs from the police and leaves you all alone—for me to take."

The look in her eyes cowed him for a moment, but the caribou spurred him.

"You dog!" she said. "You low-breed cur! How dare you?"

He grinned again. "Dog! Low-breed cur! How dare I? I'll show you, you . . ."

It was then she screamed at Kinoceti leaped for her, caught her, liquor-laden breath on her face as he snatched her up, held her close, bore her across the room; not knowing that O'Rourke of the Mounted had broken his own records, had beaten him—Peace River Jack Kinoceti over an arduous trail—even now heard the girl's cry for help.

As O'Rourke charged into the room Kinoceti whirled, the girl still in his arms, struggling, striking at him, kicking, clawing until the blood streamed from his face, ran over his mouth. He licked his lips and laughed.

"You'll pay for that, too," he told her, then saw the scarlet tunic of the authority he feared and hated. His face, anticipating triumph, changed to the snarl of a treed puma.

He did not know O'Rourke, but saw the badge of rank on the sergeant's sleeve. His own action as informer had brought this man. But the reward money was not now in Kinoceti's mind. It had left it. One glimpse at O'Rourke and he knew what was coming to him, and prepared to meet it.

He flung Marion aside, and she ran to the door that led into the kitchen, panting. She had hated O'Rourke. She still did, because of Will; but now he was her champion, and she thrilled to it.

"This," said O'Rourke, as he saw the breed—not knowing who nor what he was—crouch and prepare to fight, "is not official. It's going to be purely a personal matter—and a pleasant one."

The girl saw his eyes light up with a glow of sheer delight, the glory of a natural fighting man in a righteous cause. She clung to the lintel of the door.

O'Rourke, watching Kinoceti, knowing his kind, stripped off his scarlet tunic, set his holstered gun aside. His arms were still engaged in the sleeves when a knife flashed. The breed had flung it. O'Rourke ducked and the blade stuck quivering in the wall. The sergeant tossed his crimson coat aside and charged in low. Kinoceti, cursing the miss of his steel, awaited him, confident of his own strength and capacity, not reckoning that he had spared it with "caribou" and ill-chosen food, not realizing that O'Rourke was in far better condition, hard as vulcanized rubber of body, with sinews of steel.

O'Rourke straightened him with a right and left, flung short and hard from the hip as they closed. The blows bloodied his nose and swelled the Indian's lip. He leaped like a panther, clinking, gouting trying for fouls, and found O'Rourke tying him up, battering his kidneys, flinging him off.

This devil of a Mountie knew the tricks, fair and foul. Kinoceti came in again, took a swing on the jaw and fell to his knees, his hand about the sergeant's legs, feigning weakness, though he was really hurt from the smash, striving to trip O'Rourke, to throw him.

O'Rourke had forgotten the girl, had thought she had left the room. But she stood with eyes shining and parted lips, watching the combat, with never a doubt in her mind of the outcome. She was as savage, as primitive, for the time, as were the two slogging, hard-breathing men seeking to down each other.

Kinoceti's attack upon her had been terrifying in its sudden, vicious onslaught, in her feeling of helplessness as she tried to fight him off. Now she wanted to see him punished—and she was getting her wish.

They were well matched for a while as they fought, panting, sliding, leaping and side-stepping, grunting as a blow got home with a thud.

O'Rourke had a fair amount of science, largely discounted by the fact that all rules were off. Kinoceti would try to disable him by teeth and claws if necessary. He had already bitten the sergeant's shoulder and his head rested there in a clinch. That had cost the breed a bad battering as O'Rourke felt the smart when he tore his flesh from Kinoceti's clamping jaws. He was bleeding there now, the stain coming slowly through his shirt.

Kinoceti's dark face was blotched with bruises, his lips were a blob and one eye was closing. But he fought with the ferocity of a bayed wild beast. Even if he got out of this—unless he killed the sergeant, got rid of the girl—he figured he would be a hunted man. A breed who attempted assault on a white girl was an outlaw whose shooting never would be charged against the man who did it. The record of his crimes surged above him like a wave. He knew that even if O'Rourke knew his accredited record it would not contain tenth of them. And Kinoceti did not trust the gesture of the flung off tunic, the aside holster, the assurance that the encounter was personal.

The sergeant was boring in and the breed's wind was going. His arms began to feel heavy, his legs had lost their spring. He made a rush in a burst of fury, head down, slogging at O'Rourke's groin, trying to knee him, and got the attack broken by ripping uppercuts.

"Trying to rough it, are you?" O'Rourke panted. "Two can play at that game, if you insist on it."

There was piston power behind the Mountie's stiff blows and Kinoceti was getting desperate. He was half blind, his wind, broken by a debauch, was almost gone. He could not get his lungs refilled because of O'Rourke's relentless battering, pain shot through his side like a knife thrust.

If only he had not missed that knife fling. If he could get the gun out of the holster! He knew he could never manage the latter—the flap was buttoned; O'Rourke would be on him before he could open it. But—the knife . . . !

It was still in the woodwork. Kinoceti surged in, sidestepping, dodging, trying to reach the weapon. He took a jolt on the side of the head to leap for it and missed as the girl cried out a warning and O'Rourke, who had never forgotten the knife was there, hit him so hard over the heart and in the stomach that the blows sounded like the beats of a drum. The breed doubled up, clinging in a feeble clinch.

Marion MacLeod jerked the blade loose and stood by the door again, holding the knife, her eyes blazing. "Good for you!" O'Rourke threw at her. "It's all over. Watch this."

He was in a cold fury at the second attempt to use steel. He tore loose the breed's failing clutch, measured him as he held him up for a moment on his sagging legs. Then he sent home a right and left, smacking to the point of either side the jaw.

Kinoceti's eyes glazed, his knees sagged and he fell like a length of heavy chain, lying on his face, arms asprawl, one leg drawn up.

O'Rourke stood over him a moment, breathing heavily, watchful. Blood dripped from the knuckles of his right hand where he had torn it against the breed's teeth and left two of the latter broken.

Then he stopped, dragging Kinoceti's limp body to the door into the passage. The girl followed, her face adoring, mesmerized by the sheer physical glory of the fight, none the less so since it had been for her.

"That's that," he said as he closed the door. "The snow'll be good for him. I don't think he'll try it over again."

He was not too certain of the truth of his statement. This breed would be resentful. The beating would not lessen his desire to get even. He might stay shy of O'Rourke, but the girl was still in peril. It might have been better not to have made it a personal matter, to have made an arrest instead. But to do that would have brought Marion MacLeod's name into it. Also O'Rourke was out on a one-man trail.

"You were wonderful," Marion said. "I had been hating you," she added frankly. "I'm ashamed of myself. When Kinoceti . . ."

The sergeant had a puffed lip, but he achieved a whistle.

"Kinoceti?" he repeated. "Well, he got more reward than he expected. So that was Kinoceti?"

The girl's wits were sharp. She caught his half-spoken meaning. It was Kinoceti the man my brother really believes killed Regnier. We came up here so that Will would not be arrested, so that we would have a chance to try to pin proof on Kinoceti. The Indians always come here in the spring. They talk sometimes when they are drunk. And there was Nipegos."

She checked herself, realizing that she was talking almost confidentially with the man who represented the law, who had come to arrest her brother. He was looking at her curiously.

The population of Ontario is 4,050,000, which is approximately one-third of the 12,200,000 inhabitants of Canada. Our population is greater than that of any other Province and is roughly one-third million greater than Quebec, which has the second largest population. This figures out to eleven persons per square mile. Seventy-eight of the population is concentrated in Southern Ontario with about sixty per cent living in urban centres, having a population of 1,000 or more. The density of population in Southern Ontario is 45 per square mile.

Forests cover an area of approximately 237,000 square miles, or 58 per cent of the entire area of the province. 93 per cent of all accessible forests in Ontario are owned by the Province and are among its greatest assets. table timber for use as saw-logs, pulp-wood, or fuel. The forest resources of the Province provide the basis for a very great industry, embracing pulp and paper mills, saw and planing mills, factories manufacturing paper boxes and bags, furniture, sashes and doors, and such related industries as publishing and book-binding.

MRS. ELIZABETH BOWIE

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Bowie, one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens of this district, who died Friday, was held from her residence in Lang on Monday, at St. John's church, Keene. Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. W. C. McCarney. Burial was in St. Peter's Cemetery, Peterborough.

Mrs. Bowie was the widow of James Bowie and daughter of the late Michael Kennaley and Margaret Loggan. She was a most devoted mother and even to her last moments was ever solicitous for the needs of others. She was a member of St. John's Alter Society.

Surviving are one son, Logan, at home, three daughters, Sister Amadeus, of Mount St. Joseph, Peterboro, Marguerite and Lillian at home and one sister, Mrs. Geo. Whitby, of Stirling.

Francis Shearer. —Peterboro Examiner.

BELLEVILLE AREA FARMER SUFFERS $10,000 FIRE LOSS

A barn and five other buildings were destroyed by fire Friday night on the farm of Cecil Keene, one mile east of Belleville. The loss, partially covered by insurance, is tentatively estimated by the owner at $10,000. Firemen from Belleville saved the farm home. Cause of the fire is not known.

FOUND NOT GUILTY DUE TO INSANITY AT TIME OF ACT

Fred E. Martin, Rawdon Township farmer, charged with arson and attempted murder in connection with the burning of his farm home last May, was found not guilty by the Supreme Court assize jury at Belleville late Thursday afternoon. The jury was out just less than one hour before they returned their verdict.

On the arson charge Martin was found not guilty because the jury found he was insane at the time he committed arson and was acquitted on account of this temporary insanity.

As result of the verdict Mr. Justice Wilson ordered Martin kept in custody at a mental institution to undergo treatment.

JOHN HEATH DIES
IN WINNIPEG

Goodlands Pioneer

Goodlands district has lost one of its early pioneers, in the person of John Heath, who died in Victoria Hospital, Winnipeg, August 25th, 1947, after an illness of ten days.

Mr. Heath was born at Springbrook, Ontario, February 9th, 1866, the third eldest of a family of ten. His early boyhood was spent on his father's farm. He came to Manitoba in the fall of 1890 and remained for the harvest season.

In 1891 he came west to settle permanently and was married in 1892 to Miss Adelaide Elgar of Souris, later moving to the Napinka district, where they lived for five or six years, and finally Mr. Heath and family settled in the Goodlands district in 1898 and purchased property and farmed successfully until 1929 when Mr. and Mrs. Heath retired to Winnipeg. Mrs. Heath died in 1931.

For several years Mr. Heath spent his summers on the farm, returning to the city in the winter, until the last four years his visits had not been so frequent, and although Mr. Heath lived in Winnipeg, his thoughts and interests were with his old friends at Goodlands and he thoroughly enjoyed renewing acquaintances with his friends who came to see him.

In his earlier years Mr. Heath took a keen interest in municipal and civic affairs and was a strong Liberal supporter. Mr. Heath's charitable characteristics made him a good friend and neighbour to all in his community. Surviving brothers are David, Byron, Wesley and Edward, in Ontario, and William, Melita, Man. Three children survive: Walter and Harvey in the Goodlands district, and Mrs. Gladys Powne, of Melita. Two children predeceased him: Muriel in 1945 and Ernest in 1901. Eleven grandchildren remain.

Funeral service was held in the farm home of Harvey Heath on Wednesday, August 27th, at 2 p.m., with Rev. Waddell, of Goodlands, conducting the service, during which Marjorie White and Joyce Powne sang one of Mr. Heath's favorite psalms, "The Lord is my Shepherd."

Pallbearers who bore the remains to its resting place in Goodlands Cemetery were Messrs. Jas. E. Moore, E. Thomas, Wren Amos, Elmer Halliday and grandsons, Ellwood and Willard. — Deloraine Times, Sept. 4th.

MRS. MILTON WRIGHT

A former Marmora resident, and a native of Stirling, Mrs. Hannah Wright, was laid to rest in Marmora Protestant Cemetery Monday afternoon.

The body arrived from Toronto by train and the service was held in St. Andrew's United Church at 2:30 p.m., with the pastor, Rev. E. M. Cadigan, officiating.

The late Mrs. Wright who was 76 years of age, was the wife of Milton Wright. For the past number of years she resided in turn with her daughters, Mrs. Sherwood Runnalls, Madoc township and Mrs. Phillip Cuddy, Toronto. She died Friday evening at the latter's home.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bowen and was born in Stirling.

Surviving are her husband, three daughters, Mrs. John Hogan (Gladys), Toronto; Mrs. Sherwood Runnalls (Rose), Madoc township, and Mrs. Phillip Cuddy (Elizabeth), Toronto.

She is also survived by two brothers, Messrs. William and Samuel Bowen, of Stirling.

St. John's W.A.

St. John's W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. C. Vance on Tuesday, September 30th, with 19 members and 7 visitors in attendance.

The president, Mrs. H. Rodgers, opened the meeting with hymn "The Love of Christ Constrainseth", with Rev. C. C. Brazill at the piano. Rev. C. C. Brazill gave the Litany followed by the Member's Prayer and the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. S. McMurray read the Scripture Lesson.

Mrs. H. Rodgers then welcomed Mrs. Fred Kent, present treasurer back after her long illness, also past treasurer, Mrs. Palmer. Roll Call, Minutes of the last meeting and correspondence was read by the secretary.

The treasurer's report was read. The visiting committee for October will be Mrs. J. Stiles and Mrs. Edgar Morrow. Programme committee for October will be Mrs. E. Kent.

Mrs. H. Smith read a chapter from the Study Book. Rev. C. C. Brazill gave a reading on "Information Round The Arch Bishops of Canterbury since 597 A.D." Two contests were then given by Mrs. H. Cooke. The Deanery Dinner was then discussed with all the ladies generously donating their share. It was also decided to send for the Church Calendars for 1948. Rev. C. C. Brazill closed the meeting.

A delicious lunch was then served. Mrs. E. Cooke moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. C. Vance for the use of her home, also to those taking part in the meeting, programme and lunch.

What Others Say!

WANTS TWO PANT SUITS

A protest against the disappearance of suits with two pants is registered by the Picton "Times". The editor points out that every man has two or three suits in discard due to the fact that "the seat of the trousers represented immodest exposure." With the paper's observation that "to-day, the male is not allowed to economize," we heartily agree.

MOTORING FITNESS

Driving in view of the volume of traffic which flows over the highways is actually a calling in which mental and physical fitness occupies a pre-eminent place in the lives of people today.

The phrase "split second" is used so often as to become monotonous but it actually is what is the difference between safety and disaster. It is a very narrow margin of time traffic should flow with every driver at 100 per cent of fitness. The roads are no place for the irritating, impatient motorist, the incompetent and the driver that does not give all his attention to the duty at the wheel. There should be no driving that is not sane and safe.

Anyone watching traffic is highly aware of the thin margin between safety and accident. He realizes how every driver must be in perfect possession of himself and all his faculties so that it will not be his fault if an accident should occur. —Belleville Ontario Intelligencer.

SAYS BIG DANGER IS MORE WAGE INCREASES

Canada is in for very serious trouble if prices continue to climb. Our only hope for averting disaster is if Canadians will exercise more self-discipline, stop forcing wages higher.

So Gilbert Jackson, consulting economist, told a press conference which he called this week.

Very real danger that Canada's standard of living will be permanently reduced because of the price situation here and international trade conditions exists, he said.

The third bout in the upward wage spiral which now appears to be starting in the United States, together with the explosion of a similar kind which apparently is being set off by the latest decontrol order in Canada, has grave implications for the Canadian cost of living. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics cost of living index is now up 36.6% from its 1938 level.

A new round of wage increases at this time will have extremely serious consequences, he said. The plight of the white collar and fixed incomes generally he pointed out will be worse than ever.

The fundamental point, Mr. Jackson points out, is: "Each income payment to someone is a cost to someone else. When each income payment rises so does the cost rise somewhere in our economy."

Increase Not Shared Equally
Workers today are not facing a lower standard of living than pre-war, Mr. Jackson says, but only a lowering of the higher standard of living to which they became accustomed as a result, than one instance during recent months, we have seen people charged with serious crimes escape the punishment due them because of technicalities invoked by defending counsel and the idea seems to have gained circulation that justice in Ontario is less swift and less certain than it used to be.

One trouble is that this great increase in income was shared unequally. Mr. Jackson points out. For example the general wage rate is up 55 per cent since 1938, according to the Department of Labor index.

There is a great "permissive" inflationary potential in the 150% increase in the total means of payment held by the Canadians in the last eight years, Mr. Jackson points out. Though this in itself would not be necessitate a rise in the Canadian cost of living, it would permit a rise in the D.B.S. index of up to 70% of its pre-war level as against a rise of 35% at present, other things being equal. "And we can't exclude the possibility that it might go to 100%, he adds. "In a really rectic inflation, the rate of circulation of money, now lower than pre-war, could be stepped up considerably which would increase the amount of inflation."

One immediate fear is that the natural impulse of a lot of people who can bring pressure to bear will cause an increase in wages and so raise costs and so prices and so the cost of living. "If we were all people of variable incomes, we could all go on indefinitely but never get anywhere," Mr. Jackson points out. However, on the sidelines are people of fixed incomes who will "get it in the neck."

World Trade Problem
An international trade condition through which Canadians might be forced to accept permanently a lower standard of living is "clearly within the realms of possibility," Mr. Jackson declared. If Canada could not convert the cash surplus from exports to other countries to pay its deficit in balance of trade to the United States (as was the case pre-war) then it would be necessary to remake the Canadian economy to make it independent not only of the United Kingdom but also of the United States.

Pointing to the British situation, Mr. Jackson said, "I think the British have handicapped themselves most faithfully because they have never made the workman realize that the dollar crisis really resolves itself into the question of 'Do we continue to eat?' If they had, the British people would be taking the crisis much more seriously." —Toronto Financial Post.

SOME EXEMPLARY SENTENCES ARE NEEDED TO STOP BANK ROBBERIES

The Canadian Statesman
Bowmanville, Ont.

The Statesman lines up vigorously with the Brockville Recorder and Times which recently published the editorial below on the question of bank robbers. It is easy enough to pan the banks for getting robbed but too few breast the current like the Brockville paper and insist that the real way to stop these robberies is to hand out really exemplary sentences in the courts. The Recorder states:

Ontario and other parts of the Dominion are currently suffering from another wave of bank robberies and other serious crimes culminating in the murder of the manager of a branch bank in Vancouver who apparently declined to accede to the demand of a masked man that he should hand over the cash to him.

Within recent weeks we have been treated to a series of these robberies, most of them in this province, as a result of which not only banks but a considerable number of their customers are heavily out of pocket, safety deposit boxes in two or three banks having been broken into and rifled of negotiable securities.

As has been proved in the case of the Vancouver bank robbery, the people who engage in this type of crime are extremely dangerous criminals who are ready to shoot and to kill if need be. Included amongst them are three men with long and serious criminal records who have recently escaped from penitentiary.

This country used to be happily free of crime of this description, we are convinced one reason for this freedom lay in belief that in Canada justice was swift and certain without the delays and technicalities which commonly surrounded prosecutions across the border. Unfortunately, we cannot now say the same thing about the way in which our courts operate. In more

At one time not so long ago the city of Montreal became infested with serious criminals who preyed upon banks and altogether made a nuisance of themselves. The courts and those responsible for their administration grew tired of this, just as we grow tired of our own bank robbers, and when a man in charge of a transfer bank funds was shot and killed, half a dozen men participating in the robbery were tried and found guilty of the capital offence and all of them were strung up for the death of the one man. After that crimes of violence in Montreal suddenly lost their popularity and bandits stayed away from that city.

We need an example on the Montreal model to bring our own criminal situation under control. If those responsible for it are apprehended, let them be dealt with sternly and severely by the courts, let them be put away for an appropriate period of time—the longer the better and let them suffer the lash along with imprisonment. We have an idea that if the courts crack down with sufficient severity upon those who engage in bank robberies or other serious crime, we will soon see a good deal less of it.

LET'S ENFORCE THE LAW

With the sole exception of those from Saskatchewan, representatives of all the provinces at their Toronto meeting last week agreed that packinghouse workers must return to work before a conciliator can be appointed. That decision is sound and is in keeping with the law in every province but Saskatchewan. Everywhere else the packinghouse strike is illegal and strikers are liable to severe financial penalties.

If the unions persist in continuing the strike, in flouting the law that was designed to protect the workers' interest as well as those of management and the general public, then the authorities must step in and take positive action. Any other course is simply an invitation to further law breaking.

The Ontario Labor Minister put the situation bluntly:

"Having been granted the assured legal right to organize; to bargain collectively and to obtain certification under provincial laws, organized labor must now understand, as a result of this conference, that they cannot use these laws up to the point which suits them and then, with utter disregard for public welfare, flagrantly flout other provisions of the same laws by refusing to follow the procedure legally prescribed."

That procedure calls for staying on the job at least until 14 days after the conciliation board has reported to the Minister.

Let's hope officialdom acts on that policy.

In its action so far, not only is labor risking much of the benefits it has gained legally in the past, but it is also risking the loss of something necessary to its very existence—public good will. Livestock raisers cannot be expected to stand by quietly while markets vanish. Consumers are not going to turn vegetarian without a protest.

If the law is wrong, revise it. Meanwhile let's live up to it. —Financial Post.

Love may be blind but it certainly gets around pretty well in the dark.

HOW TO MAKE PROFIT ON POULTRY FLOCK

When starting a poultry farm, the wise poultrykeeper should consider locality and market in selecting the kind of poultry to keep, whether mainly for egg production, or meat or a combination of both, says A. S. Johnson, Poultry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The average farmer, located in the country or near a small town, will probably find that egg production will be the most suitable source of income. If he is wise he will select chickens of a breed known to be good egg producers, rather than choose a breed according to his own or the whim of someone else.

Emphasis on superior meat quality will usually result in premium prices for broilers from restaurants and hotels. Selection of the right type of broiler and proper management are the key notes to success.

The broiler industry requires a rapid growing, rapid feathering bird, which will reach a weight of 2½ to 3 pounds in 12 weeks. There are some breeds of good meat type, which will not conform to this requirement and are consequently more useful as roasters. Crossbred chickens are popular as broilers because they are frequently faster growing than the parent strains. This may not necessarily be true. While a New Hampshire Barred Rock cross produces a fast-growing broiler with good fleshing, a cross between New Hampshire and a more slowly growing breed will likely result in a bird that is considerably slower growing than the New Hampshire, consequently, no improvement has been made by crossing the breeds, unless it be in some character other than growth.

When birds are raised to the roaster stage they should reach a satisfactory weight and present an attractive carcass, free from blemishes such as breast blisters. Such a product is obtained by starting with good stock and providing proper management. Premiums are paid for top quality eggs and poultry, and their production takes little more effort than raising products of inferior quality.

There is a rapid transition between different growth stages of poultry. The growing bird on range soon becomes the pullet in the laying house. The various stages of growth require different conditions of environment and feeding. Timeliness and thoroughness of work are important and profitable. The ever-increasing danger of disease should not be overlooked as increased mortality means reduced income.

When times are good, a living can be made in poultry farming by a variety of operators, but the largest incomes are made by the efficient managers who will survive and carry on the industry, when the margin of profit is less.

MAY IMPORT CATTLE FROM SCOTLAND

Because there has been no outbreak of Foot and Mouth disease in Scotland since early this year, the Agriculture Department has announced that cattle, sheep, goats, other ruminants and swine, as from September 13th may be imported into Canada under the following conditions:

"The animals must be embarked at a Scottish port, and the vessel conveying them must come direct to Canada, without touching at an English, Irish or foreign port.

"In addition to the usual health certificates the animals must be accompanied by an affidavit of the shipper declaring that the animals so embarked have been in Scotland for a period of sixty days immediately preceding date of embarkation.

"That such animals are accompanied by an affidavit of the shipper that the feed taken on board for feeding these animals on route has been grown in Scotland."

NOW IS THE TIME CLEAN UP GARDENS

At this season of the year many insects are looking around for suitable spots in which to spend the winter. Practically every garden offers many opportunities for the insects to hibernate. Garden plots should be made as uninteresting to hibernating insects as possible.

Many of the most injurious species of insects pass the winter adhering to plants on which they were feeding when cold weather overtook them. Others crawl beneath piles of plant refuse and hibernate at the base or in the centre of the piles. A few work their way down into the layer of dead organic matter. All such may be looked upon as a definite menace, because a large proportion of the insects will survive the winter to attack growing plants the following spring.

Therefore, every effort should be made to discourage insects from hibernating in and around the garden. This can be done in a number of ways. All standing crop remnants should be pulled and burned. Crop refuse lying on the ground should be raked up and destroyed. It is advisable, also, to burn over waste land surrounding the garden, and headlands in particular, to kill any eggs or hibernating insects.

It is sound practice to collect and burn all insect egg masses or cocoons. These are frequently found on shrubs and low trees, on fences, or garden furniture or even deposited on houses and out-buildings. Cleaning these up in the autumn will prevent them causing trouble next spring.

Where possible, plough or dig up the garden in the fall, so as to expose many of the insects in the soil to be killed by the severe cold in the winter.

SPECIAL FEATURES ROYAL WINTER FAIR

Diversed rural enterprises related to Canadian agriculture are to be featured at the Royal Winter Fair to be held at Toronto, November 18-26, the nineteenth of the series since 1922. Apart from enlarged classes and bigger prizes in major live stock, cattle (beef and dairy breeds), sheep and swine, the fruit and vegetable sections are being extended and brightened. Valuable trophies are being offered for the first time to top winners in wheat, barley and oats. This is part of plans to make the Royal Seed and Grain Show independently Canadian in tone and merit. There has been an enthusiastic response among farmers in Canada to this new move.

Honey and other bee products, maple sugar and syrup, farm preserves, and perhaps even nuts, are to be classed for competition. Egg-raising methods and devices for large and small poultry flocks will be prominent at the Royal Poultry Show.

A new standard of farm stock exhibiting is to be encouraged by herdsman's contests. Points will be counted, not on the quality of the animals, but solely on the neat and orderly way in which stalls and aisles are kept by the working staffs.

Extensive modern refrigeration is being installed in conjunction with the Dominion Department of Agriculture so that farm products in finished form as desired by wholesale and retail trades at home and overseas may be shown at their best.

NEW CHEMICALS AID FRUIT GROWERS

Fruit growing never the simplest form of agriculture, is becoming even more complicated business. In British Columbia, for example, the 30-million dollar fruit industry depends for its survival upon organic chemicals unheard of until a few years ago.

Next year, Okanagan and Similkameen Valley growers will simultaneously control their three most serious apple pests with a mixture of dichlorophenyltrichloroethane and monochloramine dinitro-cyclohexylphenolate. The first of these polysyllables is commonly known as DDT. Used alone DDT does a fine job of controlling moth control but actually increases the severity of orchard mite infestations. DDT kills the natural enemies of the mites but does not kill the mites themselves. Enter the second substance with the even longer name; this is exceedingly poisonous to orchard mites but evidently not injurious to several of their natural enemies. Consequently it nicely supplements the fabulous DDT.

The new miticide, known as DNCHP for short, has been under investigation by the Summerland Laboratory of the Division of Entomology Dominion Department of Agriculture since 1941 but only in 1947 did it come into widespread use. The investigators were satisfied for some time that it was the cheapest highest effective miticide available. But because it had heretofore been used only for other purposes and was highly concentrated they were afraid that growers, by and large, could not be depended upon to weigh accurately the very small amount necessary, one part in 8,000 parts water. Since, in weighing, an error of two ounces might result in severe injury to the fruit trees, the fact that practically no injury has occurred in hundreds of grower applications speaks well for the careful work of the British Columbia fruit grower. Next year it is expected that this new aid to the fruit industry will be available in a form specially designed for summer control of orchard mites.

FALL CARE OF PASTURES

Before the coming winter is far advanced, says John D. McLeod, Director of the Crops, Seeds and Weed Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, farmers faced with feed shortages will be wishing for the day when the herd once goes out to pasture. Extra care with pastures now may result in earlier grazing next spring, he adds.

A small acreage of fall rye, or fall wheat, seeded now for pasture next spring, can be used very early, while other pastures are firming up. A good top growth on pastures in the fall, from three to six inches, will give added winter protection and earlier spring grazing. A fall harrowing stimulates growth, distributes fertility and increases palatability. A light top dressing with manure in the fall is good insurance against winter killing and makes for earlier spring growth. Surface drainage this fall will help the field to firm earlier next spring. An early spring top dressing with a nitrogen fertilizer will speed up growth.

Since this year it is imperative to stretch the pasture season at both ends, on account of the feed grain shortages, these are timely hints for Ontario farmers to follow.

CLEAN UP WEED INFESTED AREAS

Many late fall weeds should receive attention at this time of the year, says

Delicious "SALADA" TEA BAGS Convenient

D. McLeod, Director of the Crops, Seeds and Weed Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture. If left standing, weeds may be distributed by various agencies, including wind, water, animals, and birds, thereby infesting new areas.

The wind carries some weed seeds at long distances in drifting soil, also over frozen ground and snow. A recent experiment proved this fact when it was found that six ounces of surface soil taken from a spot along a road fence contained the following taints: Stickweed, 330; Wild Mustard, 267; Hare's Ear Mustard, 99; Stink-weed, 3; Black Bindweed, 150; Lamb's Quarters, 15, and Ragweed, 9. Another experiment conducted some years ago showed the presence of many neglected weeds at this time, farmers seed weeds in snow thirty-two seeds of nine species of weeds having been found in two square feet of a snow drift.

Neglected fall weeds will spread Seeds and Weeds Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, gather and hold snow, clog ditches and thus hinder the flow of water, and are dangerous from a fire standpoint and a source of infestation to the entire community. Many fields throughout the Province are infested with wild carrot, toad flax and ragweed and should be mown at this time, raked up and burned and the infested area brought into the crop road fence contained the following taints: Seeds or neglected weeds growing in vacant lots, around buildings, fence lines and on banks of rivers, small streams and ditches, may be carried long distances by spring floods. By cleaning up and burning all neglected weeds at this time, farmers can improve the appearance of their property and help to control weeds, not only on their own farms but also on the property of their neighbours.

ELECTRICITY

Maintains Employment...

Keeps Pay Envelopes Full

PLEASE DON'T WASTE IT!

Electric power is vital to Industry, and Ontario is experiencing an era of high production, unparalleled in its history. Contrary to expectations, the demand for electric power did not drop sharply following the war. More electric power is actually being used today for production of peacetime goods than was required at any time to forge weapons for Victory. This demand is constantly increasing and, during the next six months, Hydro facilities will be strained to the utmost.

New Hydro developments, planned to keep pace with Ontario's growth, were halted during the war years. They have since been hampered by shortages of men, materials and equipment. However many new stations to deliver electric power are being rushed to completion. Some are already in operation. But the need for saving electric power in your own home, during the Fall and Winter months, is urgent if the needs of Industry and Agriculture are to be fully served, and employment maintained at peak levels.

Won't you please play your part? Remember—even a little bit of electricity, conserved by hundreds of thousands, helps a lot. It's your Hydro. Use it wisely so that Hydro facilities can more adequately meet the demands of all consumers.

Save ELECTRICITY

Turn off all unnecessary lights. Don't forget about burning lights in empty rooms, halls, basement, attic, porch and garage. Eliminate all colored bulbs.

Keep lamps, reflectors and shades clean. Dirty fixtures waste as much as 25% of your light.

When kettle sings, turn off switch. Stored heat will bring it to a full boil. Keep kettle free from time.

When cooking, use "High" heat for as little time as possible. Then turn to "Low" and use stored heat.

Use oven for cooking complete meals, rather than the cooking surface. Only one element is required for the oven process while three or four elements are needed for the cooking surface.

Use the correct size of cooking utensil on the proper size element.

When cooking vegetables, use a minimum amount of water.

Defrost refrigerator regularly, when ½ inch of frost has accumulated on the evaporator.

Where water is electrically heated, please use it sparingly. A drop a second from a leaking hot water tap can waste as much as 175 gallons a month.

Fill washing machine to water line only and keep lid on tub when washing. Do not overload.

Wherever possible, use the wringer at same time as clothes are being washed in the tub.

Please do not use portable electric heaters as they place a heavy strain on your Hydro System.

Your toaster, vacuum cleaner, electric iron or other electrical appliances should not be used any longer than required.

St. John's Women's League

The regular monthly meeting of St. John's Women's League met at the home of Mrs. Ken Morrow on Monday evening, October 6th.

Twelve members with four visitors were present, two of the visitors joined the League.

The members were pleased with the sign board for St. John's that Mr. Earl Morrow had made for them at a minimum of expense. The Rev. C. C. Brazil informed the members that he had been successful in procuring Mr. Black and his choir of Christ Church, Belleville, for an organ recital. Mr. Black is an organist of good reputation and a member of the Canadian College of Organists. He will play for half the proceeds, which he will apply to the fund to replace the organs that were demolished in England during the war.

The Rev. C. C. Brazil had prepared the first chapter of the new Study Book and presented it at this meeting. It contained food for thoughts during the coming month when Mrs. Villette will present the second chapter.

A letter and donation from Mrs. G. L. Johnston were received and greatly appreciated by all the members. Mrs. Clute, Mrs. Villette and Mrs. Bell were appointed as a committee to procure a suitable play to be presented in the near future to swell our funds.

A delightful reading, entitled, "I see you Canada", was given very expressively by Mrs. Chard and a piano selection entitled, "The Fairy Pipes", was rendered by Mrs. H. Morrow.

Programme and business completed, a bounteous lunch was served by the hostess. Little Gail Morrow took up the offering with fees and collection amounting to $2.00.

Mrs. Villette voiced a vote of thanks to the hostess for her dainty lunch and the use of her home, and Mrs. Reg Coombes voiced a vote of thanks to those taking part in the programme.

Mrs. E. Carr invited the League to meet at her home for the November meeting at her home for the November meeting. We might add here, that the small son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Carr was present at this meeting, but the writer feels sure that some few years from now he will perhaps resent having made such an early appearance among a group of ladies. But I can assure him that he was greatly admired by all the ladies present and most welcome.

DISAPPEARING DOLLAR

With Canadians showing deep concern now over rapidly rising prices, it is learned in official quarters that there were advances all along the line in this country during the past month of August and this latest official information has revealed that foods moved up from 159.8 in July to 160.6, mainly due to boosts in eggs, lamb and carrot cost; fuel rose from 177.3 to 216.6, chiefly in coal & coke; clothing from 142.2 to 143.7, including men's and women's wear, footwear and piece goods; home furnishings and services from 142.5 to 143.7, involving furniture, furnishings and cleaning supplies, and others, with 1936 being considered equal to 100.

In the wholesale level, advances were also recorded in practically all lines except slight declines in chemical products and some farm products.

DELAY ANTICIPATED

When the Newfoundland delegation returned to their home, they took with them a 300-page summary report of all discussions which had taken place in Ottawa about the possibility of Newfoundland becoming Canada's tenth province but they did not carry with them any "terms". This is emphasized here. In addition, the delegation had left the impression that there was no chance of a referendum being taken in Newfoundland on such possible union with Canada before next May.

BILL ON MARGARINE

It is understood that another effort will be made at the next session of the Canadian Government to legalize the manufacture and sale of margarine as a substitute for butter. During the last session such an attempt had been made by Senator W. D. Fuler in the Senate, but it was defeated after a hard fight. However, now it is most likely that a continuation of this effort will be made in the Lower Chamber in order to wipe out legislation which has prevented such dealings in margarine in Canada for almost a quarter of a century.

MORE NEW WORKERS

Since there are many jobs for which there are no applicants across Canada, it has become evident in Ottawa that the Canadian Government is planning to increase such desirable immigration which can fill the ranks of labor and bring displaced persons from their miserable surroundings in Europe. With this objective, various demands of industries are being considered and these are expected to bring here such displaced persons to work in textile industry, lumber, domestic service construction, mining, meat packing quarrying, metal working and foundries, etc. Indeed, it is only housing and shipping problems which are holding up many more thousands of such workers from being brought to this country immediately, though every effort is being made to increase such desirable immigration, officials stress.

BIG BUSINESS

The tourist business is really "big", judging from reports here of the financial returns from such visits, which result in foreign capital being brought into the country. Realizing this fact, the Canadian Travel Bureau has spent in the past year no less than $435,000 on tourist advertising and as a result of the advertising programme 198,779 inquiries alone had reached this Bureau this year. Then again, it is revealed here that the Bureau intends to introduce more frequent insertions of advertising spread over the whole year as well as to increase the size of the staff to enable more prompt replies to inquiries, with the remark that 18 per cent of Canada's tourist business comes from the winter season, even if this is not generally realized by the average Canadian.

APPEARED RELUCTANT

According to Major Gen. H. A. Young of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., private builders in Canada are being encouraged with the promise of aid in financing as well as materials but they appeared reluctant to enter upon a building programme in the event that a price drop may be possible within the next five years.

SLOWS DOWN WORK

A report here indicates many servicemen and women are anxious about getting their delivery of honors, gallantry awards and campaign medals, and, therefore, write for information on same. However, it is pointed out in Ottawa that there is no need to write for same since delivery of such articles will be made as soon as it is possible.

In fact, such correspondence slows down the work of the department and no exact reply is possible in any case.

SAID IN THE CAPITAL

"We have an unfavourable balance of trade with the United States and the cry is for more American dollars, yet we import goods from south of the border that could be well manufactured by Canadians," said G. Russell Boucher, M.P., in an address here. "If we were to remove control," explained Agricultural Minister Gardiner when asked if Canadian cattlemen might be permitted to ship stock to the U.S., "Canada would be cleaned out of fresh meat within a week."

"I brought back the impression that we shall have no difficulty working out a peace settlement with the Japs at least, as far as the Commonwealth is concerned, stated Defence Minister Brooke Claxton.

"A lot of people think radio stations and newspapers are in the business to make money," declared Dr. G. M. Geldert, Director, Radio Station CKCO, Ottawa, "but they also render a public service."

"To-day, I am confident we have the best postal service in the world, but there is always room for improvement," remarked Postmaster General Bertrand at a meeting.

"The defence of the North American hemisphere can be achieved only if Canada and United States combine their resources," said Ben Dean, International President of the Kiwanis Clubs.

"The United Nations has established itself as a world wide organization so far as is possible in present conditions," commented David Farr of Carleton College.

"The next seven to nine years will be the greatest era of selling and prosperity the world has ever seen," stated W. E. Long, well-known American industrialist, in a speech here.

WEEKLY WIND-UP

Officials in this capital leave no doubt that they are keeping a watchful eye on prices both in the event of illegal combinations to fix prices or to change any excessive prices.

British, Canadian and American medical men held a three-day meeting here to confer on the official medical histories of World War II.

It looks like Canada will establish an import division to encourage imports under certain conditions for the first time in the history of this country.

A study of local anesthetics by means of isotopes, radio-active particles which radiate energy, may lead the way to better and easier methods for modern dentistry within a year, stated an American expert in an address in the capital.

A display of clothes worn by European children in contrast to Canadian in a window of a department store in Ottawa amazed onlookers with the sharp contrast, the torn and tattered clothes of the former winter being impossible to wear here in summer.

A rumor here is that the so-called "luxury" tax, such as on jewellery, may be lifted in the next Canadian Government budget.

A large delegation of United Kingdom lumbermen paid a visit to the capital and one of them stated that "Canadian softwoods and plywoods are in great demand in the United Kingdom for use in housing."

A school of modern languages organized in Ottawa will teach no less than eight or more languages and all will be taught by teachers from countries in which the languages are spoken, including Spanish, French, Italian, Polish, Russian, German, etc.

Though a boost in wages has been offered the charwomen who clean the Government offices her from $44 to $48 a month, yet the charwomen demand an increase to $57, with about 1,600 women being involved.

WALKING

Walking has been described as "the great universal exercise" and it pronounced by authorities to be one of the best investments there is in personal health.

A brisk walk of two or three miles daily, in all but the most severe weather, will strengthen resistance to disease and pay dividends in a sense of buoyant fitness.

Posture is of distinct importance in walking. Keep toes pointing straight ahead, abdominal muscles flat, chest expanded with deep breaths, head well balanced and chin in-arm swinging. (You won't choose a busy street.) Shoes should be well-fitting, snug about arches and heels, loose over the toes. Heels should be low.

People living within two or three miles of their work should walk the distance at least once a day. Neglect of some form of regular exercise predisposes to poor health.

Hello Homemakers! Electricity in the home contributes to brighter happier living. However, we are now going into the period when the end of daylight saving time and the approach of "shorter" days call for the careful use and the wise management of electrical home appliances, so that sufficient power will be available to supply all essential needs.

Hydro is building many new power plants but it has been more difficult to obtain necessary materials than you can imagine. For instance, their building job needs not just a few nails—but kegs and kegs of them. Power suite construction jobs often require 2,000 pounds of nails daily, not to mention cement, steel and wire. New construction takes time, but meanwhile we must do our share to make electricity continuously available. Use it sparingly before meal hours—the period when the strain on the machines is the greatest.

To help in maintaining our economical Hydro service which is hard-pressed at this time, we list the following things you can do.

To Conserve Electricity

1. Do not leave lights on in rooms not in use.
2. Keep light bulbs and reflectors clean.
3. Place lamps to best advantage for eye comfort.
4. Do not use coloured light bulbs—dark colours absorb light.
5. Use white lamp shades to reflect as - much light as possible.

6. Turn all units on range to low or off when food begins to steam.
7. Make use of all stored heat in surface elements; e.g., heating water.
8. Cook as many foods as possible in oven at one time.
9. Use flat bottomed, tight-covered utensils that fit the element.
10. Use small quantities of water for cooking and cook with pressure-cooker often.
11. Do not use your electric range to heat your kitchen.
12. Defrost your refrigerator regularly—one a week.
13. Do not open refrigerator door more than necessary.
14. Do not waste hot water if you have an electric water heater.
15. Do not run your washing machine too long—not over 12 minutes per wash.
16. Do not dampen clothes much for ironing.
17. Do not operate radio unless you are listening.
18. Do not leave appliances "on" when not in use.

WHITE ROCK TRAIL

By J. Allan Dunn

CHAPTER X

SYNOPSIS WILL MacLeod and his sister Marion had fled their uncle's trading post at Bison Crossing when sent by Alexander MacLeod to White Rock to deliver a message to Nipeogosis, who still practised witchcraft. Marion and Bill were hiding in a cottage near Nipeogosis. Before Dick reached White Rock he was shot by a half-breed Kinoceti, who wanted to get the award for Bill's capture. Marion made a daily visit to Nipeogosis, taking him broth and other food. On a visit to Nipeogosis Marion learned that some friend was dying on the trail. Bill and Marion set out to find him. They arrived and found Dick with blood all over him and practically frozen to death, lying by the dying fire. They made plans to rush him back to White Rock. After taking him to their cottage they read the note and found that the Mounties were on their trail. Bill left to hide in a cave. When the Mounties arrived he believed that the unconscious Dick was Bill, and stayed to watch him. Kinoceti and his friends saw Bill headed for the cave, left a guard and set out for White Rock. Kinoceti entered Marion's cottage, started to attack her, when the Mounties rushed out from the other room, beat and threw Kinoceti out.

"Nipeogosis," he said, evidently piecing things together in his mind. "He might know. There's not much goes on among the Indians round here that doesn't come to him. But whether he would tell is another thing. Kinoceti is mighty handy with his knife," he went on. "Regnier might well have been killed by a knife that was thrown. He was hit just about where Kinoceti would have got me if I hadn't ducked."

"Look here, Miss MacLean. You called me a policeman just now, as if you didn't like the sound or taste of that word. I'm a long way from being ashamed of it and I don't think you understand the job properly. I should be more glad than you can appreciate, perhaps, if I could find the right man, and find it was not your brother. But the man who did do it, I am going to take in."

"I can see your brother's idea of running away, staying out of jail, but it was foolish, just the same. If he could have given us any good reason to suspect this Kinoceti, to show how Kinoceti could have got your brother's knife, we could have come here and done better work than he has. The law can be trusted. We don't railroad men to the gallows. We don't find them guilty before everything is sifted down."

"You tried to fool me with that man inside there. You nearly did. He looks enough like your brother's description to have kept me here until he could talk. But there were the bones outside, the fact that sled dogs had been here and left; the clothing was too new, the shoes too, that did not match the others in size; I didn't like that stupor of his. It doesn't look natural. I don't know who he is, but some one warned your brother to get out."

"It doesn't take much to guess this was the messenger. It doesn't take much to guess who sent him. I spent the night with your uncle four days ago. I stayed very close to him. I am sure no messenger overtook me. But it is quite possible, with Alexander MacLeod's connections, he had already sent one ahead. That might be hard to prove. If it could be it would show something mighty close to compounding a felony."

"Is it a felony to help those we love, when we know they are unjustly accused?" she demanded.

"It's mighty natural, at all events," O'Rourke stalled. "I have a mind that your uncle, however, does not love his nephew too much."

"He does," she cried hotly. "They misunderstand each other, that is all. But, when uncle called Will names, when he pretended to be through with him, it would be only to . . ." She stopped abruptly.

"Only to cover up the fact that he helped him in his first get-away, had sent a messenger to warn him the police were on his trail."

The sergeant's face was stern, but his eyes were not hard as he looked at the girl.

"Why don't you tell me where Will is?" he asked. "I won't arrest him until we've all three talked together. I want to help you—and him."

She flushed at his direct offer of help to her, but she shook her head. She had respect as well as admiration for this man who had figured out everything, even to the artificial stupor produced by the trance-weed given her by Nipeogosis, fed to Byrne in a drink so that he would remain unconscious as long as she could hold the Mountie. But she was not going to admit things. Above all, she could not give Will away.

"I cannot act as judge for my brother in a case like this," she said. "It might be wise—but I cannot betray him."

O'Rourke nodded. "It will probably not be very hard to find him, later," he said. "I appreciate the way you feel. We'll have to let it slide. I can't leave here now. Kinoceti may not have come alone. Even if he did, perhaps just to meet me and arrange getting his reward after I got my man. I couldn't leave him round here loose, after what has happened. I'm afraid I'll have to ask you to let me sleep here, after all. In this room. I can still rustle my own grub."

"You needn't rub it in, she told him. "Of course you'll eat here. I'm grateful enough to you already. I'll be more so to know I don't have to stay here alone. Poor Dick Byrne won't be of much use for a while even when he comes out of the stupor."

"Dick Byrne, eh?" O'Rourke reflected on the name, placed it. "I didn't hear you mention that," he said to her, seeing her upset. "Forget it."

"You're putting me under too many obligations," she told him. "After all, you are here to arrest Will."

"I should be glad to be a friend to him and you," the sergeant answered, meaningly. "I'm going out to have a look around."

"You're a chump, Tim O'Rourke," he told himself angrily, as, outside, he lit his pipe. "What right have you thinking of a girl at all? A fine husband a man in your job would make. And her fearing she'd be a widow without knowing it, all the time you were out on trail. A fine mess you'd be getting into with her eyes tanging you up. Attend to your duty and that's plenty for you, O'Rourke."

He saw where Kinoceti had picked himself and staggered off in the slushy snow. But the trail died out where the surface lay in the shadow and was hard. Nor did he find the three others, finished with the bottle of caribou Kinoceti had left them, sleeping off their drunk.

O'Rourke and the girl ate in the cabin with drawn blinds of sacking. O'Rourke meant to lie low. He had not gone far, but before the light faded, he had seen, not only the track of what he was sure was Will MacLeod's sled gone west, but the trail of four Indians, coming east. Therefore Kinoceti had three with him.

Nothing happened. An hour after O'Rourke had helped Marion with the dishes she went in to look at Byrne. It would have been time to give him more trance-weed. That was not necessary now. He was coming out of his stupor. The pipe-stemmed weed with its purple blotches had certain medicinal qualities, aside from being a soporific. He looked better, his skin was shining with a healthy sweat, and he asked for food.

He recognized her for the first time. "I thought it was you," he said, "but everything was hazy. I didn't know if I was dreaming or not. I do dream about you, Marion. Plenty. How did he come out here? Where is Will? Didn't I hear a man's voice in the other room just now?"

"It wasn't Will. He isn't here. You are not to talk about anything."

"I do feel played out. I'm a bit of a washout. But I'm feeling a lot better. Listen, I had a message I was trying to get through for somebody up here."

"It got through. We found it on you and delivered it. It was really for Will, or me."

"That's a relief. Thought I'd failed. I really did, at that. Who found me? I remember now. The fire was out and there was no more wood. I got drowsy. I thought, somehow, you were close by, trying to talk to me and I . . ."

"You have got to rest," she said firmly. "And not to talk, I'll tell you everything later. Now, will you go to sleep?"

"I might, if I was bribed. I'm pretty tired."

She hesitated, for just a moment, then she bent over and kissed him on the lips. He closed his eyes.

"After that I'd just as soon I never woke up," he murmured. She passed her hand over his forehead, wiped his face with a cloth and went out with a heightened colour. Dick had done his best. O'Rourke had come through on the same trail. She wondered which . . .

O'Rourke was by the window, listening. His carbine leaned against the wall and his service automatic was unholstered in his hand.

"Thought I heard something outside," he said in a low tone. "Moon's rising. I can take a peek presently. Can you use a gun?"

"I can shoot pretty well."

"Good girl! Perhaps you'd better watch out the back. It may not amount to anything."

They experienced nothing for hours except the tremendous strain of waiting—waiting! Then, around midnight, yells and howls broke out, drunken, barbaric. They looked through the curtains and saw, beneath the moon, dancing, leaping about a small cabin that was on fire, four figures. They kept an dancing, whirling, shouting while the flames reached their height, the roof fell in and the log walls collapsed, burning fiercely. O'Rourke hoped they had danced off their frenzy.

Suddenly he sent the girl to the back. The four breeds, devils from excitement, lust and liquor, were coming to the cabin.

Byrne called out from the inner room. O'Rourke went in to him and

Mutual Leader Honoured

D. G. WILLIAMS

The Mutual Life of Canada has released its Honors List, recognizing Mr. D. G. Williams for outstanding service to his community in the Club Year recently closed. He has again qualified as a member of the Company's senior production group, the Quarter Million Club.

Qualification for Club membership requires not only the writing of a large volume of new business, but, more important, the writing from year to year of "quality business, that is, life insurance that is continued in force. These two factors, combined with a high personal standard of confidential service to policyholders, earn for Mutual Life representatives membership in the production clubs.

found him on the edge of the bed.

"What's up?" Byrne demanded. "Somebody's got my gun! I . . ."

His eyes widened and his jaw dropped at the sight of the sergeant.

"I borrowed it," said O'Rourke. "You lie down, or you'll start your leg to bleeding."

"That's just too bad. I don't know what the devil you're doing up here, but you've got no license to borrow my gun, Mountie. It's my leg, after all. And my girl. I saw her just now. And those were Indian yells, Indians on the rampage. Give me back my gun, sergeant. I'll do my own share of fighting. Marion's here. She's my girl, damn it, give me my gun!"

He was a trifle incoherent, but he was in earnest. O'Rourke put down the lantern deliberately.

"Your girl, is she?" he said thoughtfully. "Well, if that's so, you're lucky. I'll not keep you out of the scrap. Take this window. I'll get you your gun, Dick Byrne. But don't waste cartridges. We've none to many. When you shoot, shoot straight."

And truth in every lover's tongue,
These pretty pleasures might we yield
To live with thee and be thy love.

THE WEED OF THE WEEK TOAD FLAX

(Linaria Vulgaris)

Toad flax, or Butter and Eggs, is an erect, slender plant, 12 to 18 inches high, with narrow pointed leaves, arranged closely along the stem. The flowers are bright yellow with an orange projection on the lower lip and are about one inch long, borne in clusters. Seeds are brown or black, flat or disc-like, about one-tenth of an inch in diameter.

This weed is a deep rooted perennial, with creeping rootstalks, which spreads very rapidly in light soils. It is mainly found on roadsides, railway embankments and to some extent in pastures and meadows, once this weed becomes established it will take complete possession and should be eradicated while the infestation is light.

Eradication

In pastures, and meadows, where the area involved is large, July plowing, followed by cultivation until freeze-up, is desirable. The following year a well cared-for hoed crop will practically complete the clean-up. Where cultivation is impossible or impractical, spudding, or spraying is the only effective means of control. For Toad Flax, a sodium chlorate type of spray is necessary, as 2,4-D is ineffective against this weed. Discuss methods of eradication with your county weed inspector or contact the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Large Congregations Attend Salem 75th Anniversary Services

Rev. John R. Bick, of Janetville, Delivers Splendid Sermons — Program Monday

Salem United Church at Minto celebrated its 75th Anniversary on Sunday last with special services at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Rev. John R. Bick, of Janetville, Ont., a former minister, was the special speaker for the day, and large congregations taxed the capacity of the edifice at both services. The occasion also marked the reopening of the Church, after being decorated, and its beauty added to the attractiveness and dignity of the services.

Rev. J. F. Everson, minister, conducted the services and the proceeds for the anniversary were approximately eight hundred dollars.

The musical contribution made to these splendid services by the choir, under the direction of Mr. J. B. Hagerman, included two anthems, "Come and Worship" and "There's A Song In My Heart", at the morning service and an anthem, "I Am Thine O Lord," at the evening service. Mrs. Francis Jeffrey, of Belleville, was guest soloist for the day and contributed a number at each service.

Ernest Broadworth, Douglas Broadworth and Ernest Saries and Misses Joan and Jean Twiddy and Jean Sine.

Fraser, Water Falls, Ontario, Rev. E. Swayne, of Lansdowne, and Rev. J. M. Lovelace, of Mallorytown, all former ministers.

The contest was judged not only for the most beautiful girl but for the "nicest" trio — a sort of personality and beauty contest combined.

The Stirling girls did a dance number and wore white shorts and blouses with neat multi-colored belts. Miss Gena Vandervoort was accompanist. Each member of the trio received $4.00 as prize money.

Each trio had to provide some sort of entertainment whether skipping or dancing like the lasses from Stirling.

Psalm 74 was read as a responsive reading led by Mrs. Stanley Irvin. Hymn "All people that on earth do dwell," was used and the Scripture Lesson was taken from 2nd Cor. 3rd Chapter, and was read by Mrs. P. Utman. Prayer for forgiveness and dedication was given by Mr. Barker. The consecration hymn, "Take my life and let it be," closed the worship service. Mrs. Bush very capably gave a synopsis of the 4th chapter of our Study Book dealing with the work of John Eliot, in having the Bible translated into the English language. The mishap benediction closed the meeting. After which Mrs. Macklin and her group served lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Bible Society Elects Officers

Rev. Egerton Young, Provincial Board Representative, Delivers Fine Address

The Annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society met in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on Tuesday evening, October 14th. The meeting was presided over by the president, Mr. Arnold Wannamaker. After the singing of a hymn the Scripture Lesson was read from Mark 16 by Mr. Wannamaker. He urged for man's responsibility to send the Gospel of Christ to all parts of the world. He maintained that we cannot go ourselves so we should be willing to give freely to send others in our stead. The British Bible Society should be supported by every Christian in any church. Rev. W. H. V. Walker led the meeting in prayer.

Rev. Egerton Young, district representative of the Provincial Board, gave a fine address illustrated by a sound film on the "Life of Wm. Tyndale," a vivid reminder of the price paid that we might have the Bible. Mr. Young told of the world-wide shortages of Scriptures, thousands of young people in Germany joining the church and no Bibles amongst them; millions in China and Japan calling for copies of the printed word.

The fight against superstition, materialism, despair and fear must still go on. The Bible is our one hope for the future. The word of God is the one thing that links man and woman across the barriers of nation and race and creed. The United Bible Societies of the world are circulating the Scriptures in 1070 different languages, and is supporting the ministers of all the churches by supplying them with copies of the Scriptures in the language of the people to whom they go.

Mr. Young took charge of the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President — Mr. Arnold Wannamaker.

Vice-President — The resident ministers, Mr. Macklin, Mr. Houchin, Mr. Tompkins and Dr. Helliwell.

Secretary — Mrs. H. Rollins.

Treasurer — Mrs. N. Wescott.

Mr. Wannamaker in resuming his office for another year urged for a greater co-operation, that Stirling might do her share in assisting to carry out the command, "Go Ye Into All The World and Preach The Gospel To Every Creature."

WOMAN DIES IN CRASH AT HASTINGS

The car was traveling towards Rose-neath, and it is believed that Menzies lost control of the car when it left the highway and overturned. Dr. D. Bell-Smith, of Hastings, and the coroner, Dr. Baker, of Campbellford, arrived shortly after the accident.

Mr. Menzies suffered a badly cut hand and Mr. Dunkley, husband of the dead woman, and Mrs. Menzies, the wife of the driver both suffered broken wrists.

800 HPE VETERANS PARADE TO BELLEVILLE CENTAPH

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 6th—Some 800 veterans of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment Sunday paraded to the Belleville Cenotaph to pay tribute to their fallen comrades. The memorial service concluded a week-end of gay festivities where old friendships were renewed and many a "tall tale was told." One old vet aptly put it, "I've never attended a better rebellion." "Yank" Sullivan, veteran writer and photographer, was the veteran to come from the longest distance, Pittsburgh, Penn.

The banquet hall was gaily festooned in colors of the regiment and decorated with flags. Dinner speeches were short and addresses were given by Lieut. Col. A. A. "Ack Ack" Kennedy, DSO, president of the regiment association, and the regimental padre, H. Capt. Fred Goforth, MC.

During the banquet, wives who had accompanied their husbands were entertained by the H and P ladies' auxiliary in the Sergeants' Mess.

Big Dance

A monster dance took place immediately following the banquet. To one side of the armories and overlooking the dance floor was the regimental mascot "Little Chief," a huge Indian carved of wood and standing some eight feet high. The Little Chief, as he is known, has served with the regiment throughout their historic campaign and his predecessor, the original "Little Chief," fell in "France" near Brest where he was buried in 1940. The wooden Indian in an honorary member of the regiment.

After the dance a draw for the annual scholarship fund prize took place. The ticket was drawn but no name has been decided upon by the committee as Board of Education officials name the winner.

Sunday's events began with a get-together session. At two p.m. the parade marched to the memorial cenotaph for an impressive drumhead service. In attendance for this occasion were Lieut. Col. A. V. Yates, MCVD, Deloro, Rev. Arthur Smith, who was regimental padre with the unit in 1940, Padre Fred Goforth, who was with the unit overseas, and Col. Vanderwater, of Foxboro.

Prominent and waving in the gentle breeze at the head of the regiment was the battle flag. The flag and staff still carry scars of battle, where bullets have grazed or torn them. On the return march to the armories the parade passed the reviewing stand where the salute was taken by nine-year-old Dale Ruttan, of Port Hope, whose father was killed in Italy at the battle of Ortona, and Lieut. Col. Yates.

BUTTER PRODUCTION CONTINUES TO GAIN

Butter production continues to run ahead of last year, says C. E. Lackner, Director of the Dairy Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, in his summary of creamery instructors reports for the month of September. There are reports, he states, showing many patrons switching from cheese factories to creameries. Many cheese factories in Western Ontario have discontinued the manufacture of cheese and are either separating or shipping the milk.

The announcement by the Royal Winter Fair that they will again have a Dairy Products Exhibit, says Mr. Lackner, is arousing considerable interest among quality-minded producers. They look on the Royal as the place where only the best must be shown, and several are taking steps to have Ontario make a good showing in the butter classes.

Mr. Lackner mentions that the help situation in creameries is still very acute, and several operators are looking for qualified buttermakers.

FIX NO BLAME FOR DEATH OF LATE FRED GREEN

"We find that the said Fred Green came to his death in the first concession of the Township of Sidney, in the county of Hastings, in the vicinity of the Town of Trenton, about the 9th day of July, 1947. The evidence indicates that death was due to natural causes."

The above verdict was returned by a jury sitting under Dr. E. A. McQuade, at the Town Hall, Trenton, on Wednesday evening, October 1st, after the evidence of several witnesses were heard.

The late Mr. Green, who was a native of Stirling, it will be recalled, had been missing from his boarding house from July 9th, until his body was found on the evening of September 7th.

SEED FOR EXPORT NOT PLentiful

With generally reduced production of the 1947 principal field crops, is not expected that the quantities of registered and certified seed available for export will be in excess of those exported from the 1946 crop, the Dominion Department Agriculture has announced. Export permit applications already received for this class of seed, indicate a desire to export quantities far in excess of the surplus likely to be available.

Though a preliminary export surplus of common spring wheat has been established to permit some trading, the final quality which will be approved for export is not likely to exceed that of last year, about 900,000 bushels. It is not yet possible to establish even a preliminary figure for the export of oats, barley and flax seed, the Department said.

It is essential that farmers in Canada be given every opportunity to obtain seed for his 1948 plantings, and as there are local shortages, farmers using registered or certified seed are urged to arrange for their supplies as soon as possible.

Seed processors intending to purchase for export, seed of wheat, oats, barley, and flax, eligible on the basis of crop inspection for registration or certification should make certain that the seed is surplus to local and adjacent domestic requirements before moving substantial amounts from production areas, so as to leave the seed where it is required. This would obviate the possible need for redistribution throughout Canada at higher handling costs, of seed which had been assembled on the assumption that export-permits would be granted.

The Department points out that the object of the export permit system is to assure that sufficient seed is retained in Canada for domestic use.

It cannot regulate the quantity of seed retained in any particular province or locality. It is through the co-operation of farmers and seed processors that this can be done to the best advantage of all and with the least cost for second-handling.

HOW TO CONTROL THRIPS IN GLADIOLI

During the past season, many growers of gladioli have raised the question as to what should be done with the corns dug from the garden where the gladioli thrips were prevalent. Some of the growers thought that these corns should be destroyed.

That is by no means necessary, says Alan G. Dustan, Division of Entomology, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture. While it is true that many of the insects may be taken into storage on the corns this insect may be easily killed by proper treatment. All the thrips left in the garden will be killed by winter temperatures, so there is no fear, he says, of the old plot being infested next spring.

If at all possible, the corns should be dried and stored in a cool place. That will check the development of thrips. It is recommended, also, that treatment be commenced just as drying and ripening are completed, which will be about the beginning of the calendar year. The grower himself will have to decide what method of treatment to adopt, because the treatment will largely depend on the number of corns in his collection.

The corns may be dusted, dipped, or fumigated all these methods giving almost perfect control. Among the dusts, DDT is the one now most generally used. Lysol or corrosive sublimate are favourite dips, and fumigation with naphthalene flakes has long been the most popular with the larger growers. Full directions regarding these methods, are given in a publication entitled, "Standard Control Recommendations for the Gladioli Thrips." This is known as Processed Publication, No. 65. Copies may be obtained by applying to the Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

SHIPPING CATTLE UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Difficulties, and the overcoming of difficulties, confront the farmer all the world over, and every corner of the globe has its own special brand of hazard to the farmer. In Western Australia, for example, the worry to the stockman is the long trail and transport of live cattle, with particular snags looming up at the distant shipping ports. Shipping live cattle in Western Australia is a big part of the work of coastal vessels, says the Australian news. At the beginning of their 2,000-mile journey from their stations in the Kimberleys in the far northwest, the cattle are taken by the drovers to a western port and driven down gangways, or races as they are called in Australia, on to the jetties which may be more than a mile long.

At some of the northwest ports, the tide drops 30 to 40 feet, leaving ships on the ocean bed and allowing passengers to walk around the boat almost dry-shod. This means that the cattle must be urged down the gangways from the end of the jetty right down into the ship's hold. As the tide rises, sections of the gangway are taken off, until eventually, as the ship appears above the level of the jetty, the last of the cattle have to climb to enter the ship.

HOUSE PLANTS ADD COLOUR IN WINTER

At this time of year many an ardent the pool who said: "The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year, with walling winds and naked woods, and meadows brown and sere." Aptly enough, the poem is entitled "The Death of the Flowers."

But though there is a long wait before the snowdrops and crocus herald another Spring out-of-doors, much pleasure can be derived during the winter months by continuing some of the gardening indoors. Even the smallest potted plant of begonia, African violet, or geranium, adds a touch of colour to a room, and foliage plants such as ivy, aspidistras, or palms, give gardener may echo the sentiments of decorative value with little attention. For those who are ready to spend a little more time the bulbous flowers, hyacinth, daffodils, narcissus, may be grown, and timed to bloom as a welcome to the New Year, or at Easter.

A useful bulletin has been prepared by the Division of Horticulture, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, on the care of house plants and on the control of insects which may attack them. It contains suggestions which may bring greater success to those who have always kept house plants, and will give valuable information and instruction to the beginner.

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained free on request to the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Ask for it by name — "Culture and Care of House Plants".

HANDS AT WORK...

LEARNING TO BUILD FURNITURE

ONTARIO'S productive capacity is the measure of her future prosperity. To assure this Province a prominent place in domestic and foreign trade markets, skilled hands are needed. In training schools and ON THE JOB, veterans are being taught how to make furniture—urgently needed for homes that must be built here and abroad. They know that higher wages, job security and better working conditions are within easier reach of those who have mastered individual skills.

Through plans sponsored by the Department of Veterans' Affairs and other agencies, hundreds of veterans have been given basic training in various trades. They will become more proficient with further experience and training ON THE JOB. Taught to use their hands in fashioning wood products and in upholstering and finishing furniture, these craftsmen of the future will have a share in Ontario's progress—an important part to play in her industrial development.

CABINET MAKING

Harold Geddes, 26, of Parry Sound, a veteran of 4 years' service with the Royal Canadian Navy, is shown here sanding the base of a Grandfather's Clock. The quality of workmanship in Canadian Vocational Training Schools is high. Expert instructors check every detail.

Courses in the furniture trade give the student a basic knowledge of period and custom built furniture, wood finishing and upholstering. A thorough study of every type of wood, Canadian and imported, is also included.

"Publicity" Subject of Paper Given At Meeting of Stirling W.I.

The October meeting of the Stirling Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Louis Rodgers on Thursday last with a good attendance of members. The meeting opened with the Ode and the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. H. Rodgers led in community singing, and the Roll Call was answered with "Hallowe'en Legends."

Mrs. W. West took charge of the programme and opened with more community singing, with Mrs. Woodbeck at the piano. Mrs. West gave a reading, "Why Housewives Have No Whiskers," also staged a contest. Mrs. R. H. Williams gave a piano solo. Mrs. V. Woodbeck read a well prepared paper on publicity prepared by Mrs. C. Chard, the district Convener of the W.I., which was as follows:

This standing committee was created for the purpose of bringing before the public eye all the accomplishments and objectives of the Women's Institute. This includes the activities of all other standing committees, such as the work being done in "Home Economics," "Citizenship," "Social Welfare," "Historical Research" and "Canadian Industries." In all these we have accomplished much in the past, and are still carrying on in the present, and hope to be even more progressive in the future. Then let us add to the W.I. Publicity by boosting and advertising our branches activities a little more freely.

It has often been said "advertising is the soul of business," the same can be said for the progress of the W.I., and it is our individual responsibility to arouse more public interest, to maintain our footing in this worthy organization, at the same time through this interest to strengthen it by adding new members to our roll.

There are many means of advertising, the one considered the most satisfactory is through the medium of the press as the majority of people like to read the local newspaper to ascertain the week's happenings.

When reporting any special activity use a title to attract notice and write the account in a snappy style.

Another noteworthy form of publicity is the life of the branch, and the friendly attitude and co-operation of its members. Actions often speak louder than words and stir a mark of admiration from the outside public with an incentive to join this friendly band of women.

Whenever possible let us keep in touch with other branches and watch the press reports of their meetings. Something original in program planning is always interesting. They in turn can watch our smoke if we advertise.

Publicity began in the branches can be extended to other countries in order to foster better international relations which is so obviously lacking in the world to-day.

Canada, the mother of Women's Institutes, can do much in this respect. First, by becoming better acquainted with members of our sister W.I.'s in other countries. A mutual friendship can be formed by correspondence. Each member could adopt a pen-pal from a fellow Institute member of another country. Exchange of ideas and branch activities would create a lively interest, particularly when working for the same cause. Friendship begun in this manner would doubtless have far reaching results — let us hope — be carried to future operations. The Superintendent, Miss Lewis can supply addresses of Branch Institutes in other lands.

Entertaining members can usually find new ideas in boosting the W.I. These ideas will be gladly welcomed in all branches, districts and areas for:

It isn't any trouble just to boost your Institute.

Results will quickly double if your horn you start to toot.

Just bridge that fancied puddle. Make it vanish like a bubble. And forget all signs of trouble. When you boost your Institute.

Mrs. Lake gave a humorous reading, "Peck's Bad Boy," which was enjoyed by all. A vote of thanks was extended to the hostess and committee in charge, Mrs. West, Mrs. Lake, Mrs. Tulloch, for the dainty lunch.

Bethel Church Supper A Success

The ladies of Bethel United Church congregation catered to approximately 300 people, the evening of Thursday, October 9th, when the new church hall was officially opened to the public.

Bowls of luscious red apples and vases of "bitter sweet" were used to decorate the table laden with an abundance of appetizing foods. Guests were present from all nearby points, as well as from Frankford, Trenton and Belleville.

Mrs. Carleton Potts and Mr. R. A. Hermiston entertained with piano and violin music while the second table was being served.

Rev. T. F. Townsend, of Deseronto, a former beloved pastor, was chairman for the programme, in the absence of Rev. N. Cole, who was in New York last week.

Mrs. Harold Elliott presided at the piano, and accompanied the soloists. Two piano duets were contributed by Misses Barbara Meiklejohn and Lois Mason, of Springbrook. Miss M. Hull sang "Danny Boy"; Mrs. T. F. Townsend contributed two vocal numbers, "Bless this House" specially dedicating the newly decorated

ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

There have been many reports about an earlier session of Parliament in order that the Government may deal with serious problems which have arisen since the last gathering of the legislators, including the worsening "dollar" crisis, but it must be pointed out that the Government can act in this crisis by Order-in-Council without calling Parliament. In fact, numerous cases can be quoted where this form of procedure was used in Ottawa to solve serious national problems.

RATES OF PAY

The rates of pay of the Canadian armed services have aroused much interest in recent days due to the rising cost of living, but it is understood here that the existing rates, which were established in 1946, are considered by the authorities to compare favorably with those of other English-speaking countries, such as the United States, Great Britain and Australia.

PRELIMINARY EXPENSES

Criticisms have been heard in Ottawa on account of the fact that the newly organized Association of Canadian Consumers had received $15,000 from the Canadian Government to defray some of the preliminary organizational expenses, these funds coming from those originally appropriated for the Consumer Branch of the War-time Prices and Trade Board and wherein many of the groups of women forming the new consumers organization had done splendid work during the war and postwar period. However, there is really no ground for such criticisms because it has been clearly understood in Ottawa that, in making the $15,000 grant, the Government is in no way whatsoever lessening the complete and absolute independence of the new consumer organization. In simple words, there are no strings attached and the new national organization can do as its members wish to achieve its objective, that is, protect the best interests of all consumers.

STREAMLINING PARLIAMENT?

It is believed here that the visit of the Speaker of Parliament, Hon. Gaspar Fautoux, and the Chief Clerk, Dr. Arthur Beauchamp, to the United Kingdom may bring possible suggestions for changes in the rules of Parliament, though, of course, it is pointed out that before such changes can be introduced these must be studied and passed by a committee as well as the Parliament itself.

Meanwhile, in other directions, workers have been busy in the Parliament Buildings making changes which will improve the ventilation, lighting and heating of the structures, with a report indicating that air conditioning of the buildings will make them comfortable both in winter and summer. There have been complaints heard that Parliament has been forced to sit through Ottawa's notorious hot months and this latest change is expected to eliminate these troubles.

VETERANS' PREFERENCES

While Canadian veterans get a preference in their initial appointment to a post in the Civil Service of Canada, yet it is learned in Ottawa that after this initial appointment there are no other preferences on the job so that promotions are made without regard whether the person is a veteran or not. This has caused a considerable amount of dispute or misunderstanding and veterans are known to be dissatisfied with present system of promotions in many cases, charging that there was some "prejudice" in such promotions against veterans, though this is denied in Ottawa.

BALLOON IS GROWING

Undoubtedly, Canadians are learning the hard way that it is not easy to slow down the balloon of prices which some people here hold may become even bigger before it will probably burst but there may be some consolation for them in the report that rising prices of essential items, such as food, clothing, etc., are more troublesome across the board in the United States. Indeed, the Americans have been unable to slow down the rising prices to much extent in foodstuffs that many of them are crossing the border merely to buy certain foods here, though this is limited in scope by the officials.

Reports reveal that at border points countless Americans visit Canadian stores within short distances and return with eggs, butter, preserves, etc., finding the costs and qualities here give more for their money, with this being interpreted as a practical demonstration of the relative conditions on prices in the two countries.

RAIL CAR SHORTAGE

Canada's railway car shortage is a problem which has not been solved completely by any means, it is emphasized in Ottawa, and this may not be solved for some time to come in face of desperate efforts, with one report insinuating that transportation shortages are slowing down the movement of grain.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS

In both official and unofficial quarters of the capital there appears to be a determined drive to prepare for a record tourist season next year with no punches pulled. It was found during the past summer months that Canada's tourist trade can be turned into an even more highly profitable industry than it is already and much news of this drive will be forthcoming shortly, especially since experts hold that in this postwar period tourist trade in Canada can be a tremendous source of income to thousands of Canadian businesses if tourists are satisfied that they are getting their money's worth in accommodation, service etc.

SAID IN THE CAPITAL

"Some will say that the Government has moved too rapidly in decontrol, others that it has moved too slowly, but that controversy will never be settled to everyone's satisfaction," said State Secretary Colin Gibson.

"If the present decline in European purchasing from North American continues much longer, world-wide deflation will result," declared Official Opposition Leader, John Bracken in an address.

"Give them good roads, decent meals and satisfactory accommodation and the dollar will follow," remarked Hon. A. J. Hocke, Minister of Economic Affairs for Alberta Government, at a meeting here, emphasizing how to attract tourists to Canada.

"Everybody seems to be in the black market," commented Mayor Stanley Lewis, of Ottawa, offering his impressions of a trip to Europe.

"Though the war is over and the peace is won, it's not yet secured," said Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence, in a speech here.

"There's a new day coming, I don't know when but it is coming," declared Andrew Paul, president of the North American Indian Brotherhood, in presenting a totem walking stick for Premier Mackenzie King as gratitude of the Indians of Canada for the appointment of a joint parliamentary committee to inquire into Indian affairs.

"About sixty percent of mental hospital patients are discharged within one year of admission and less than twenty-five percent ever have to be re-admitted to mental institutions," said National Health Minister, Paul Martin at a conference here.

WEEKLY WIND-UP

There is considerable grumbling among civil servants in the capital about the rising cost of living and slowness in getting pay increases, especially in the low categories of salaried employees.

The Cabinet has had some mighty long sessions lately and important news may be expected to "break" soon.

Though the prices of certain steel products have moved up, yet it is predicted that costs of household articles and other steel supplies will not be raised in any unreasonable degree for fear of buyers' resistance, already noticeable in some lines.

Ottawa has been the scene of several important gatherings of women from every section of Canada in recent weeks and it was observed that a great many of them did not favour the new longer skirts as dictated by fashion.

F. C. Jewett, chief wartime airport construction officer in Canada, included the planning and building of world famous airports, was honored by a dinner here.

In face of report that coke prices would rise in Canada, it is learned here that this may not involve a general boost throughout the country.

It is understood that the Government is going to spend about $2 million to repair and bring up to standard veterans' homes.

Hello Homemakers! Apples, queen

of Canadian fruits, reign high in our estimation of desserts. There is scarcely a dish in which you cannot use apples and usually they are "never-fail" recipes. In spite of the fact that the old standbys, applesauce and apple pie, are always the family's favorites, there are indications that readers want to add new dishes to their repertoire.

TAKE A TIP

1. Apple sauce, smooth and clear, may be combined with cooked rice and whipped cream. Chill and serve with a spoonful of red jelly.

2. Apple sauce is something different when jellied and served with custard or cream. Pour 2 cups of sauce through sieve, then add to softened gelatin (one tablespoon gelatin in 1 cup cold water). Add a dash of lemon juice. Chill and when beginning to set, add a tablespoon of chopped nuts. Pour into wet moulds; chill and then unmould on pretty plates. Serve with cream or custard.

3. Baked apples are always popular. For something special, peel a third of the way down and fill cavity with mince meat, then bake in moderate oven to prevent bursting of skin.

4. Have you tried apples stuffed with chopped prunes? First core and put a bit of butter, sugar and cinnamon in each cavity. And chopped prunes and bake apples about 40 minutes. Serve with boiled custard.

5. Then, too, Apple Dumplings with a thin coating of biscuit dough or pie pastry are scrummy if you bake them at high temperature — 425 degs. for 15 to 20 mins.

6. Apple Pandowdy is the good old-fashioned pudding. To make it fill a pudding dish with peeled and cored tart apples, then add one or two tablespoons water unless apples are very juicy. Sprinkle with sugar and season with nutmeg, top with baking powder biscuit dough. Bake in electric oven at 375 degrees for 20 minutes. Serve with a maple cream sauce.

7. Apple Crisp is our quickie. Peel and slice apples off the cores into greased casserole. Add 1-3 cup water and 1 tbsp. lemon juice. Rub 1-3 cup hard butter and 1 cup granulated sugar together and sprinkle over the top. Bake in an electric oven at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or with an oven meal for 40 minutes.

APPLE PIE

3 cups sliced apples, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice, Grated rind 1/2 lemon, 1 tablespoon butter.

Line pie plate with paste. Turn in apples and sprinkle with sugar; salt, cinnamon, lemon juice and lemon rind. Dot with small bits of butter. Put on top crust pushing it gently toward the centre. Press edges together and trim. Bake in an electric oven 400 degs. F. for 50 minutes.

APPLE CHEESE AND CHERRY SALAD

4 tart apples, 18 maraschino cherries, 3 packages of cream cheese, mayonnaise. Peel apples and cut into small balls with French vegetable cutter. Form cream cheese into balls, making eight small balls from each nest. Garnish with maraschino cherries and mayonnaise. Serve additional mayonnaise.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. S. M. asks: What apple varieties do you recommend storing?

Answer: Greening, Newton, Northern Spy, Golden Russet, Stark are best kinds to store.

Mrs. B. A. asks: What is your method of canning apples?

Canned Apples

Answer: Wash, pare, and quarter, or slice and drop into weak salt water to prevent discoloration. Blanch 13 minutes. Cold-dip. Pack in sterilized jars, and cover with water or thin syrup (1 cup sugar, 4 cups water) to overflowing. Half-seal. Sterilize 60 minutes.

In the final game of the playoffs played on the Alemtie diamond, Belleville, on Monday, October 20th, the Maple girls defeated Stirling High School footballers by a score of 25-13. A large crowd of supporters from both Madoc and Stirling were present.

ANNIVERSARY AT WEST HUNTINGDON

Large congregations attended Anniversary Services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m., on Sunday last. Rev. W. H. V. Walker conducted both services and Rev. Major John Foote, L.L.D., V.C., was the special speaker for the day. The church was artistically decorated with flowers and potted plants banking the pulpit. A very generous thankoffering was received.

The musical contribution made to the morning service included a duet, "His Love Is Wonderful To Me," by Misses Marilyn Eggleton and Arline Tummon, of Stirling, and a solo, "Beside Still Waters," by Miss Tummon. Mrs. Clayton Tummon presided at the piano and a large choir led in the singing of appropriate anniversary hymns.

At the evening service a male choir led the singing while Wm. Reynolds, of Stirling, sang two solos, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "The Lost Chord," and a male quartette composed of Mr. Hawthorne and his three sons, Bill, Tom and Stanley Hawthorne, of Madoc, rendered "Take Time To Be Holy," accompanied by Miss Bessie Fleming. Mr. Stanley Hawthorne acted as pianist throughout the service.

Major Foote brought appropriate messages at both services.

Recital at St. John's

A good crowd attended the recital by Gordon McCully Black, organist of Christ Church, Belleville, assisted by Miss Helen Cook, Soprano, in St. John's Church last night. The soloist revealed a voice of great charm and beauty, while the organist's renditions were equally charming.

The collection was taken and dedicated. Mrs. L. Munro read the minutes of the last meeting and the business was dealt with. The next meeting will be a Church Service, to be held in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening, November 9th, at 7.30 p.m., with Mrs. Turner, of Burnbrae, as the guest speaker.

Mrs. L. Rodgers and Mrs. S. McIntosh were appointed a committee to bring in the 1948 slate of officers. Mrs. R. Williams reported for the "Glad Tidings." Mrs. Donald McIntosh took charge of the meeting and programme. Hymn 192 was sung and Mrs. D. McIntosh gave a reading, "Multiple Blessings." Miss Gena Spry read a thanksgiving Hymn and Mrs. Roy Eggleton gave a reading.

Mrs. W. H. V. Walker gave a splendid topic on "Thanksgiving," which will be published in full next week.

The meeting was closed with the benediction.

Given Surprise On 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heasman Presented With Clock And Casserole by Friends

On the braw, bright, moonlight night that was Thursday, October 23rd, many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heasman gathered at their home in Sidney Township to help them celebrate the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

Rev. A. L. Shorten, of Foxboro, was the chairman and led in community singing, with Mrs. Roscoe Vanderwater at the piano. A short programme followed with Mrs. B. R. Searles contributing a reading, followed by two accordion solos by Mr. Ben Conneligo; a guitar selection by Ralph Hannah and a piano solo by Miss Lois Mitts. A mock marriage ceremony was also presented. Taking part in the latter were: Mrs. B. Mitts, pianist; Myrtle Tanner, minister; Alex Tanner, bride; Dorothy Ross, groom; Blake Johnston and Dave Hollinger, bridesmaids; and Laura Blecker, groomsman.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of a silver casserole and electric mantel clock, with Mrs. H. Dettler reading the following address:

Dear Mary and Fred — Since we have gathered here tonight to celebrate your twenty-five years of married happiness, let us pretend our memory store house is similar to a radio and tune in to a time and station 25 years ago today. You were in your happiest and merriest moods. The future looked very bright and all looked possible and tolerable on the road that wound in and out among the hills.

Tonight as we tune in, 25 years later on that road, the hills and valleys stand out so much more rugged in places than you ever dreamed of. Times when the climb seemed almost impossible were step by step surmounted until today you feel you have gone a long way on that road of married life. One thing stands out very clearly — you have both always worked as a good team pulls together, and as one worked together throughout hardships, sickness, disappointment and the anxious times during the war years or whatever came your way to go through. You have always appeared to us to be very faithful to each other and to your task. A bright light in our memory is your effort to be cheerful and to spread sunshine and good cheer, putting the best side out, while you were always ready to lend a helping hand to others.

Now, about this helping hand, — it would help some of us here who have not yet attained to 25 years of married bliss if you could give a few ideas as to how it is done. For instance, how to avoid a feeling of monotony during 25 years of living with one person. How to sidestep the first or any other quarrel. Would you advise a recording of the marriage ceremony, read it the exactly proper minute, as a help in smoothing out drastic differences of opinion? Which one should give in first? When you write your booklet on "How to be happy during 25 years of marriage," the answers to these and many other questions would prove valuable to the rising generations of young marrieds.

But we won't wait for your booklet to come out, but will take the opportunity of presenting you with these gifts.

The Ladies served the usual bountiful lunch (the feature of the evening for some!), and as the braw bright moon had gone to rest, her shining example was followed by all and sundry.

Canadians Went From Barter To Banking 130 Years Ago

BANK OF MONTREAL, CANADA'S FIRST-ESTABLISHED BANK, GAVE COLONISTS THEIR FIRST REAL MONEY
FOUNDED CANADIAN BRANCH BANKING SYSTEM IN 1817

Bank of Montreal Completes 30 Years On Second Century of Operation

Ontario's oldest banking institution will be 130 years old next Monday.

Oldest in Canada, as well as in Ontario, the Bank of Montreal, although organized in Quebec, had two branches in this province within eight months of its foundation—one at York and another at Kingston—and, today, the bank has substantially more offices in Ontario than in any other province of the Dominion. It was in 1817 that the first regular stage-coach run began between Kingston and York. That same historic year saw the founding of Canada's first permanent bank—the Bank of Montreal, as millions of Canadians now call it. The date was November 3rd, and thus next Monday will mark the bank's 130th anniversary.

In all the intervening years, the B of M has opened for business on every single banking day—an impressive proof of how closely and continuously the bank's work has been woven into the vast progress of the country since colonial days.

Pioneer Days

A good account of early times has come down from James Croil, a British settler who later became a Bank of Montreal shareholder for the extraordinary span of 60 years.

"When I began farming in Ontario," Mr. Croil's recollections begin, "we had neither mowing nor reaping nor threshing machines, and the women had no sewing machines. . . . The postage on a letter from Ontario to Halifax was two shillings threepence. . . . There was no money in circulation in those days. . . . Everything was done by barter. . . ."

Mr. Croil wrote those words referring to Canadian conditions at a time a good deal later in the nineteenth century than 1817. It can be imagined how difficult life was in that even primitive day.

When the Montreal Bank, as it was then known, first opened its doors, the population of Canada was just about half a million. Trade was carried on principally by barter, and to a lesser extent by the use of American, British, French, Spanish and Portuguese money.

Canada's First Money

At the very outset, the young bank issued its own bills in small denominations and, later, copper tokens. This money, indeed, was the first real Canadian currency. The innovation did much to stabilize and speed up commerce and industry, which had hitherto been subject to the varying rates of exchange of the several currencies in use.

This was but one aspect of the bank's major contribution to the Canadian economy. That contribution amounted to nothing less than ending the chaos in which business was transacted and organizing the first domestic financial system of Canada.

So well did the bank succeed that this system has since evolved without ever losing stability, no matter how critical the times or how rapid the country's growth. Thus, through more than a century and a quarter, the Canadian economy has survived two major wars and several minor ones, as well as periodic depressions and civil unrest. It has expanded many times since 1817 and has won world recognition for its rare combination of dynamic growth and steadiness.

Much of the nation's economic strength derives from another principle which the bank introduced in Canada. This was the branch-banking system. Within a fortnight of the opening of the first office in Montreal, an agency was started in Quebec City. In the following year the B of M opened a branch at York—the Queen City's first bank—and another at the garrison town of Kingston.

Spreading Branches

As the years passed, the bank spread its branches all over Canada. During the early 1840's, it opened branches at Bytown, now Ottawa, at St. Thomas, Belleville, St. Catharines,

LOCAL BRANCH HAS 45-YEAR HISTORY

Though the connection of the B of M with Stirling is a short one compared with the 130-year history of the parent institution, the influence of the bank upon this town has been considerable. Established here on July 7th, 1902, by the Sovereign Bank, it was taken over by the B of M six years later. Since opening, the branch has given 45 years of uninterrupted service, and has played an important part in maintaining and developing the prosperity of the whole community.

The bank's original office was burned down to the ground, as was most of the rest of the business district on the north side of Mill St. in the disastrous fire of 1908. Construction of the present premises, situated on exactly the same site, was begun almost before the smoke had ceased to rise from the smouldering embers of the old building. This office, on the corner of Mill and North streets, is convenient for business and private interests alike and is fully equipped to give a completely modern banking service to all its customers.

G. L. JOHNSTONE

In charge of the local office for more than four years, Gerald L. Johnstone came to Stirling from West Lorne. Mr. Johnstone, a banker of 32 years' experience, as were his predecessors, keenly interested in all local activities. He succeeded S. L. Lucas, now manager of the bank's Central Market branch in Hamilton.

Brockville, Hamilton and London.

In the opening of the West which the B of M facilitated by placing its resources behind Canada's first transcontinental railway, the Canadian Pacific, its branches went hand in hand with the pioneers and were established at key points from coast to coast at an early date.

The bank contributed vitally to many phases of home-front activity in both world wars. In peace as well as war, the strength, swift progress and high standard of living of the young country can be attributed in a unique degree to the policies of its oldest bank. And the B of M has grown with the country.

The bank began with a capital of $250,000 and a staff of seven. At the present time its capital and reserves amount to $78,000,000. Its resources are close to the two-billion mark, and its staff numbers more than 3,000. It has over 500 branches, including offices in Newfoundland, New York, London, Chicago and San Francisco. Its depositors number more than 1,500,000—about one out of every five bank depositors in the nation.

Thus, the bank that nine colonial merchants started in such a modest way 130 years ago, has become, indeed an integral part of the life of the nation.

GEORGE W. SPINNEY, C.M.G.

President of the Bank of Montreal for the past five years of the bank's 130-year history. A member of the staff since 1906, he joined the bank as a junior at his native town of Yarmouth, N.S.

Mr. Spinney served as a number of posts in the bank before his appointment as assistant to the general manager in 1922. In 1925, he was appointed as assistant general manager and eight years later he became general manager. During the war, Mr. Spinney was chairman of the First Victory Loan Campaign and for two years he was chairman of the National War Finance Committee.

B. C. GARDNER

Vice-president and general manager of the Bank of Montreal, who is also president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and a vice-president of the American Bankers' Association.

Mr. Gardner, whose wide experience in banking includes service in England, the United States and Newfoundland, as well as in eastern and western Canada, became an assistant general manager of the organization and two years later he became director and vice-president.

CANADA'S FIRST BANK MANAGER
Taken from an old silhouette, the reproduction above is of Robert Griffin, the Bank of Montreal's first cashier. Mr. Griffin, whose position was similar to that of a present-day bank manager, served with the B of M from 1817 to 1827.

FRENCH CANADIANS AND JOBS

Though about 43 senior administrative jobs in Canada's Civil Service have been filled by French-Canadians, with the salaries ranging from $4,000 to $9,000 a year, yet it is understood in Ottawa that more such appointments will be made with in relatively short period in order to satisfy the complaints of Quebec M.P.'s who have been grumbling that French-Canadians have not been named to enough such posts.

Uncle Hy Says

(Copyright 1947, H. M. Moore)

A man in town had bought a farm, and in the neighbourhood the folks had said that Money Bags was up to no dang good, these city slickers they agreed were alright in their place, but to think that they can make farming pay, is but a hopeless case.

But Money Bags had plans he had to make his new farm pay, he bought himself the latest things, he moved them out one day, he broke up land that for years had grown naught else but weed, and pretty soon he made that farm, a picture farm indeed.

It isn't such an awful crime for such men to be about, they read a lot, they study too, they know without a doubt, and while they cannot hitch a team or do what farmers do, they can steer a tractor 'cross a field, leave furrows straight and true.

What Others Say!

FIVE CENTS WORTH OF HEAVEN

Last Sunday night I went to church. Yes, I went to Sunday evening service in a big twenty thousand dollar building, equipped with an expensive organ on which a talented organist played soul-stirring music. A well trained choir led the singing and entertained with a beautiful anthem excellently rendered. An eloquent speaker, who had spent years in study at a first class university, gave a carefully prepared and well delivered sermon to an attentive congregation of about too. Well dressed ladies with fur perous looking Christians they were too. Well dressed ladies with fur collared coats. The men, too, were well groomed and bore no look of poverty or want. Outside the church a row of parked cars bore mute witness to a pleasing measure of the world's goods.

"Here," mused I, "is an organization that does much good. It must stretch our eager helping hands to the poor, the sick, the weak, the imprisoned, ministering even as did the Christ who is here so reverently worshipped. Here is the very personification of the ideal for which our country is even now at war." And I was glad that, I had gone to church that night."

A pause in the service and the collection plate passed slowly down the aisles while the organ pealed out glorious music praising the Giver of all Good. At last the plate reached me and I looked with new eyes upon the worshippers of God. For piled high upon the plate were nickels, five-cent pieces, one for every worshipper, with here and there a dime. I passed it on. The fourth-to-last lady next to me raised her well gloved hand and dropped another nickel on the growing pile.

Again I mused: "Does one hold long to that on which one places little value? Is five cents the measure of our Faith in God and of our Hope of Heaven?" —Anonymous in Smith's Falls Record-News.

THEY'RE ALWAYS LOADED

The old army rule still holds good: Never point a gun loaded or unloaded at anyone—never unless you intend to kill. But the news of the day, and almost every day shows how little the rule is observed. "The gun that isn't loaded is always the one that goes off" approaches the axiomatic. There were many casualties during the last deer season, and a marked rise in the number of accidental deaths from firearms. But by far the larger number of accidental deaths are not from stray bullets and mistaking human beings for game, but from the careless and reckless handling of loaded guns.—Guelph Mercury.

Chatham Defeats Bata For Provincial Championship

The Chatham "Shermans," taking full advantage of costly Bata errors in the early innings of the game, won their second straight Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate "A" title at the Belleville Fair Grounds on Saturday afternoon, defeating the shoe-men 4-3 before a crowd estimated at 1200.

The victory was the Chatham squad's second in a row. They defeated their Eastern Ontario rivals in Chatham last Sunday before 7,000 fans by a 6-1 score. It was something of an O.B.A. record in a series of "two."

Bata practically handed the game to the visitors on a silver platter in the first three innings. They bobbled the ball no less than five times, the most of the errors being costly.

Shoulder Wound Self-Inflicted Say Police

The mystery of a shooting which Friday night startled residents of the Plainfield community, was apparently solved Saturday when police stated that Harold Crawford, 21, of Plainfield, has been charged with being a public mischief but not yet arraigned.

Friday evening, Crawford staggered into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wilder, a Plainfield neighbour, claiming that he had been shot a few moments previous as he was entering his own home. He later told police that he suspected his wife's two brothers as four months ago the two had given him a terrific beating in a Belleville pool room.

Crawford's wife is only 17, the couple having been married last January. Police disbelieved Crawford's story of the shooting and on Saturday afternoon at Belleville hospital stated they had obtained a confession from him that the bullet wound in his right shoulder had been self-inflicted. Police claim they can prove Crawford's wound was made by a bullet fired from a homemade .22 pistol which they found in the Crawford home the night of the shooting.

CANADA'S FIRST BANK BUILDING

Taken from an old hand-coloured engraving, this winter scene is a view of St. James Street, Montreal, as it appeared in 1830, thirteen years after the Bank of Montreal's founding. The building on the right was the first head office of the bank, which served as headquarters for the B of M from 1819 to 1848. This was the first building especially constructed for banking especially constructed for bank-office stands on this site, while adjacent to it, the historic Place d'Armes, is situated the bank's present head office building completed and occupied in 1848.

NEWS FOR THE BUSY FARMER

GRASSLAND ESSAY CONTEST ENTRIES CLOSE NOV. 15th

Entries for the Grassland Essay and Slogan Contests, announced recently by the Director of the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, J. D. MacLeod, will close on November 15. There are two essay contests, one open to all residents of the Province, with an award of $250, and the other confined to Oxford County boys and girls 15 years of age and under on November 1, 1947, with a prize of $100. The subject for the essays is "What Better Grassland Means to Ontario," and essays must not exceed 1,000 words in length.

A prize of $150 is offered for the best slogan of not more than twenty words on the importance and value of grass to Ontario farmers.

Entries for these three contests must be sent to J. D. MacLeod, Secretary, Ontario Crop Improvement Association, Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario.

SEED GROWERS URGED TO SHOW AT ROYAL FAIR

The Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, has sent out circulars to some 2,000 farmers in Ontario, urging them to enter their products in the grain and seed show at the Royal Winter Fair. Last year, Ontario entries were very light in the classes for field peas, field beans, soybeans, spring wheat, spring and winter rye, flax, corn, alfalfa, alsike and sweet clover. Mr. MacLeod, Director of the Branch points out that, judging from last year's entries, exhibitors from Ontario will have excellent possibilities for landing in the prize money in these classes. This year the prize money has been increased, and valuable trophies are being offered to the winners of grand championships in wheat, oats, barley and peas.

"If you have grain or seed of high quality," says Mr. MacLeod's circular, "we suggest that you make immediate plans to become an exhibitor at the Royal. A grand championship will establish you as a seed grower. It is worth while aiming at and is within the reach of any grower with high quality seed."

In order to assist prospective exhibitors, the branch has prepared a circular on "How to prepare grain, clover and grass seeds for seed shows." Copies of this will be sent to any farmer on request to the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

SEED SURVEY OF ONTARIO PLANNED

As a first step towards greater production of feed grains in Ontario during the year 1948, a comprehensive seed survey of the entire Province is being undertaken by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. This will be the most complete survey of its kind ever undertaken by the Department, with the agricultural representative branch, the county weed inspectors and Crop Improvement Associations co-operating in the work, declares John D. MacLeod, Director of the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch.

The objective for 1948, says Mr. MacLeod, is an increase of 50,000,000 bushels of feed grains—wheat, oats, barley, mixed grains, corn for husking and buckwheat, over the ten year average production of the Province. This objective was fixed by crop improvement officers attending a conference on increased production, and was based on the fact that in the last year, subsidy was paid on the movement of 56,999,000 bushels of feed grain from the West. The overall objective for 1948 is therefore 200,896,000 bushels of feed grain, and the first essential in planning for this production is to make sure that ample supplies of seed of the highest quality are available. The survey will determine the amount of high quality grain on hand suitable for seed, and whether or not action must be taken by the Department of Agriculture to make provision for further seed for the needs of the farmers of the Province.

In order to produce the more than 20,000,000 bushels of grain set as the objective, it is estimated that 11,428,000 bushels of seed will be required. It is felt that the increased production should be gained not only by increased acreage of feed grains, but primarily by greater yields per acre. "If this is to be accomplished," says Mr. MacLeod, "we must have an adequate supply of high quality seed of recommended varieties."

ed varieties."

The seed survey, which will be carried out by the county weed inspectors working under the instructions of the Agricultural Representatives, and with the assistance of County Crop

HYBRID CORN HAS ADVANTAGES

Plant scientists are constantly engaged in developing new varieties of seed which will aid farmers to produce better crops. An example of this is found in the extensive use in Ontario of the open-pollinated varieties of husking corn.

In 1939, only 10 per cent of the total corn acreage in Ontario was planted with the hybrid seed variety, but by 1944, all but 5 per cent was planted with this variety. Average acre yields were 38.9 bushels for the period 1936-40, and 45.8 bushels for the period 1941-45. In addition to greater yields per acre, hybrid corn reduces the labour required for harvesting, because with stronger stalks and roots it does not lodge. The ears are at a more uniform height on the standing stalks, which makes husking easier, whether done with a mechanical picker or by hand.

Men of Vision...

PROVED THEIR FAITH IN CANADA ...130 Years Ago

An exhausted Europe—torn by decades of war—was breathing more easily . . . two years before, the Napoleonic Wars had at last ended at Waterloo. In the New World, the three-year-old Treaty of Ghent had ended an attempted invasion from the south . . . and the peoples of North America began a friendship that is the admiration of the world today.

INTO this scene came nine men of vision . . . nine English and Scottish merchants who realized that, without a solid financial foundation, the colonies could never reach nationhood. Together, they determined a course of action. With their own money and the backing of 209 other pioneering citizens, these nine men founded the Bank of Montreal, which opened its doors for business on November 3rd, 1817. Never once since then has the Bank failed to open on a business day.

BUT all was not easy. There were hard, trying days ahead—each decade had its ups and downs. From 1836 to 1840, Canada experienced a succession of bad harvests, political convulsions, commercial changes and failures. Rebellion had depreciated the value of property and seriously hindered the improvement and further settlement of the country. The Bank of Montreal survived only by the most careful use of its resources and the confident loyalty of its depositors.

—Peace . . . new plans . . . new hopes . . . rehabilitation. Life in Canada still takes work, courage and, above all, vision . . . the kind of vision which spurred nine men to pioneer the nation's economy 130 years ago. From a corporal's guard in 1817, the staff of the B of M has grown to an army of eight thousand strong . . . working closely with Canadians and their industries in hundreds of communities from coast to coast . . . supplying the lifeblood of credit to an expanding nation . . . seeking always—through sound counsel and friendly service—to give practical help to the million and a half customers who put their trust in the Bank.

What of Tomorrow . . . ? Just as history foreshadows the future, so the record of Canada and of her first-established bank working together gives promise of bright tomorrows for the nation. "The twentieth century belongs to Canada" . . . and for that future we pledge ourselves anew to work constructively with Canadians in every walk of life.

ONTARIO and the B of M Have Grown Up Together

Business by barter, travel by stagecoach . . . such was the order of the day when the Bank of Montreal began business in Upper Canada. Within eight months of its founding in November, 1817, the B of M—Canada's first-established bank—opened agencies in the garrison town of Kingston and the trading settlement of York. Typical settlers of the time, the thousand citizens of York lived by farming, lumbering, and trading with the Indians.

Since that far-off day, Ontario has become the most populous and highly industrialized Canadian province . . . and the B of M has built up its largest representation here. Soon, the new 16-storey B of M building will be numbered among Toronto's many beautiful edifices . . . typical of the progress Ontario and the Bank of Montreal have made together.

Today, the B of M serves the people of this modernized province through 189 branches and is constantly adding to this number.

JUST two weeks after the Bank started, Canada's first branch bank was founded . . . the B of M's Quebec agency opened—and, thus, the Canadian branch banking system began. The following year saw agencies opened at Kingston and York, now Toronto, and branches spread as the years went on. Hailed throughout the world for its strength and flexibility, this system of branch banking—begun 130 years ago—has proved ideal for a country vast in area and small in population.

1900—the century opened with a new flood of prosperity which lasted for more than a decade. Two more trans-continental railway systems . . . a great influx of new settlers . . . abundant crops . . . thousands of new industries—and then . . . World War I! Through the trying times which followed . . . the inflated days of the 20's and the depressed days of the 30's—through a second World War in our time . . . Canadians worked and fought, and Canada became a world power.

RECOVERY was rapid during the middle years of the century. Then came 1867 . . . and a nation was born. But a trans-continental railway was a condition of Confederation, and now the Canadian Pacific had to be pushed through. To speed the construction, the enterprise was placed in private hands. The work went fast, and the last spike was driven five years earlier than expected. With faith characteristic of its nine founders, the B of M had backed to the limit this great national project.

Hello Homemakers! Purple and gold are predominant colours of the fall harvest festival. Just gaze upon the rich gold of the pumpkins and squash, the deep purple of egg plant and grapes, and you are aware of Mother Nature's artistry. Not only do these vegetables and fruits with their regal colorings attract the eye, they tempt appetites as well, deserving an honoured place on Canadian tables. Today our recipes pay special attention to the late harvest.

BAKED STUFFED EGGPLANT

1 medium-sized eggplant, 1 cup raw mushrooms, 4 tbsps. bacon drippings or butter, ½ cup chopped onions, 1 cup minced ham, ½ tsp. salt, 1-8 tsp. pepper.

Cut slice from top of eggplant or cut in halves lengthwise. Scoop out eggplant to within a half-inch of outer skin. Peel mushrooms and chop them along with scooped out eggplant coarsely. Do not grind. Saute in bacon dripping or butter with onions for 10 minutes. Add ham and seasonings. Fill eggplant shell, cover top with waxed paper and keep in refrigerator until ready to bake. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) until thoroughly heated through and brown (about 20 to 30 minutes). Yield: Four servings.

SPICED RED CABBAGE

1 small head of red cabbage, 2 tart flavorful apples, 2 whole cloves, 1 tsp. caraway seeds, brown sugar to taste.

Cut a medium head of firm red cabbage into shreds; put in pot and add 2 tart flavorful apples, peeled and diced, 2 whole cloves, 1 teaspoon of caraway seed, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1 tablespoon brown sugar or enough to suit taste, 1 tablespoon of butter or other fat and salt and pepper to taste. Add very little boiling water. Cover closely and cook slowly until done, about 1 hour. Serve with roast pork.

PUMPKIN CHIFFON

½ cup sugar, 1½ cups pumpkin, cooked or canned, 2-3 cup milk, ½ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. ginger, ½ tsp. nutmeg, ½ tsp. cinnamon, 3 egg whites, ½ cup cold water, 3 egg whites, yolks, 1 tbsps. granulated gelatine, baked tart shells, chopped nuts.

Put ½ cup sugar, pumpkin, milk and seasonings in top part of double boiler. Heat and add to egg yolks, slightly beaten. Return to double boiler and cook until thick. Soak gelatine in cold water and add to thickened pumpkin mixture. Mix thoroughly and cool. When mixture begins to thicken, beat egg whites until stiff, beat in remaining sugar and fold into pumpkin mixture. Pour into tart shells and serve garnished with chopped nuts (if desired).

GRAPE AND CARROT JAM

2 cups coarsely grated carrots, 1½ cups water, 5 lbs. slightly underripe Concord grapes, 4 cups sugar, 1 tsp. salt.

Combine carrots and water, cook until tender and most of the water has evaporated. Wash and stem the grapes. Measure to make 7 cups. Place in another saucepan, crush and add sugar and salt. Mix well, then cook slowly until sugar dissolves and mixture boils, stirring frequently. Rub mixture through fine sieve into large saucepan and add carrots. Bring to boil, cook for 10 minutes or until of desired consistency. Remove from heat and skim. Pour into clean, hot-sterilized jars and seal.

NOTE: Our favourite jam.

IS ON PROSPERITY STREET

You can help Hydro keep her there—Save Electricity

Ontario has made giant strides since the war. Her output from factories, farms and other industries has expanded enormously. In fact, her progress has been phenomenal.

Here is the rub. Since industry in Ontario depends so heavily on Electricity, this wonderful expansion has resulted in insistent calls for more and more Hydro power.

What is the Answer? Just this: Hydro has many new power developments under way, but it takes several years to build new generating plants. In the meantime Hydro asks each of you good Ontario citizens...homemakers, workers, farmers, storekeepers, business men to do your part...to Save Electricity. It should be easy. All of us use it lavishly—more so than any other people on earth—because Hydro rates are so low.

Every saving, no matter how small, will be worth while. Don't burn lights needlessly, use your electric range with care. Turn off motors and appliances as soon as you are finished with them. Please do your part and save electricity, everywhere you can. It's needed during every daytime hour.

Every bit of Electric Power saved will be used to maintain employment, to make more jobs, to keep Ontario on Prosperity Street.

Flinton Youngster Complimented On Unusual Courage

Young twelve-year-old Ben Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lloyd, of Flinton, exhibited unusual courage when he faced a desperate situation on the farm of his father on Thursday last. The youngster set out to examine a trap which he had laid, to catch a skunk which has been bothering the chickens for some time. On arriving at the snare, he found a huge animal resembling a dog caught in the trap which snarled and growled at him. Armed with a .22 calibre rifle, he put several bullets into the quarry lashing to obtain its freedom, until it appeared to be finally subdued. Thinking it was dead, he released it from the trap and grasped the back legs to try and drag it home. The animal was still full of fight and in its dying agony, swung a paw toward young Ben. The lad drew quickly away and pumped several more well-aimed bullets into the carcass. Because of the heavy weight of the animal, he left it at the spot and after telling his story on his arrival home, he was chastised by his unbelieving parents, who thought he had destroyed one of the calves. When the boy insisted that he had been thoroughly frightened during the experience, his father decided to investigate. On reaching the spot, he found one of the largest wolves ever destroyed in the north county. Young Ben was complimented on his coolness in destroying the wolf and he will be permitted to present the pelt to the County Treasurer for the usual bounty. — Tweed News.

Farm Forums

By G. Clare Burt, Ontario Farm Forum Secretary

As a result of Six Zone Conferences that have been held throughout the month of October and personal contacts in Northern Ontario and in other areas, it is extremely apparent that Farm Radio Forums are going to be more active than ever before in Ontario. Numerous areas in Northern Ontario have already expressed their desire to discuss Co-operative Hospitalization as an Action Project over and above the regular Farm Radio Forum discussions. This project developed in over twenty counties last winter in Southern Ontario as a result of Forum Discussions and Action.

Most Forums are using the first few Forum nights to decide on a project that they might study on a community basis for the coming year. These include everything from painting mail boxes to Hospitalization.

The discussion topics for the first two series of the 1947-48 Farm Forum Season are:

- November 3 — Youth on the Farm.
- November 10 — The Farmer Takes a Wife.
- November 17 — A Farm Organization for Everyone.
- November 24 — What the Forums Say.
- December 1 — What's New in Health?
- December 8 — The Teacher in the Community.
- December 15 — Organizing for Community Action.

STIRLING DELIVERED PRICES OF GENERAL MOTORS CARS

FROM time to time, as a matter of public information, we have published the Retail Delivered Prices of General Motors Automobiles.

In accordance with this practice and to eliminate any uncertainties or confusion, we are again publishing the present Retail Delivered Prices. These prices include Standard Factory Equipment, Dominion Taxes and spare tire. Provincial and Municipal Taxes where such apply, license fee, and optional equipment are, of course, additional.

We sell these makes and models at the prices shown. You may rest assured, we will distribute them as fairly as possible with proper regard for orders placed with us and dependent upon the availability of models.

Should you be offered, from some other source, a new car, or one with low mileage, we suggest that you pay no more than the prices listed. You will obviously find it to your advantage to wait a little longer, until we are in a position to deliver a car against your own order.

We are sorry to say that delivery to you may be delayed for some time yet. This is due, in particular, to the shortage of many materials. General Motors has done a splendid production job under the circumstances and expects to steadily increase the rate of production. Meanwhile, these conditions, combined with the wide popularity of General Motors cars, and such an unprecedented demand, mean that delay in some instances is quite inescapable. We entreat your patience and understanding while the shortage exists.

We realize that our success depends upon the confidence and goodwill of our many customers. We will strive at all times, through good business practices, to justify, and therefore retain, this most valuable asset.

SHAKE-UP SUGGESTED

While the results of the recent York-Sunbury, N.B. by-election were not entirely expected, yet, ever since it brought an overwhelming victory for the Government's political forces, it has been followed by strange stories along Parliament Hill of possible changes in the organization of the Progressive-Conservatives at their headquarters here, though no confirmation could be obtained. Inquiries indicate the stories heard are stories, even if sometimes such stories in Ottawa are forerunners of important news in the political field.

IT LOOKS GOOD BUT—

Whenever the farmers of Canada get more for their efforts, such increases are usually well publicized in the urban centres, so that the latest report in Ottawa about the higher costs being paid by the farmers for their services and commodities should receive the same spotlight. This report shows that since the beginning of 1947 Canada's farmers have paid more for food, clothing, fuel, household equipment, health maintenance and other needs. Indeed, on the basis of 1935-39 equals 100, the Canadian farmers have paid 154.8 in Aug., 1947, for food, 161.5 for clothing, 139 for fuel, 122.7 for health maintenance, and 115 for miscellaneous items. In contrast, in Jan., 1947, for these same commodities or services, he had to pay less for each, such as 132.2 for all, 139.1 for food, 127.3 for clothing, 128.5 for fuel, 122.5 for health maintenance, and 111.2 for miscellaneous.

IMPORTANT REPORT

It is understood in Ottawa that Dr. Gaspard Fauteux, Speaker of the House of Commons, and Dr. Arthur Beauchamp, Clerk of the House, are working together with a view of preparing a report suggesting some important changes in the procedure of the Canadian Parliament in order to speed up the operations of the legislative body without interfering with the rights or privileges of members. They have been studying carefully ways and means of accomplishing this difficult task, including a trip overseas for this purpose, and the results of their work may be seen in the next session of Parliament when their report is expected to be made known and answering suggestions may include possible changes in the method of asking and answering questions of members, time of setting of the House adjournment process, etc.

"LUXURY" TAXES

More and more complaints are being heard in this capital against the so-called "luxury" taxes and it would be no surprise at all to veteran observers here if the next budget will eliminate all or many of them.

It is argued that, in actual practice, these "luxury" taxes are causing injustices. For instance, if a person wants to buy ordinary glassware or silverware to set up house, a "luxury" tax has to be paid, even if this means adding only forks, knives and other necessities to the home. On the other hand, if a person buys flowers or expensive furniture, no such taxes have to be paid. In short, there is much in these so-called "luxury" taxes being forecast.

MORE STOCKS

Canadians should be able to get more variety and quantity of goods shortly, it is learned here, since wholesalers across the country are reporting much larger stocks on hand in various lines. In fact, at the end of the eighth month of 1947, it is reported in Ottawa, Canadian wholesalers' stocks were valued 37% higher than at the same date a year ago, with these increases usually meaning that more goods will reach your favourite store soon.

In the different lines, this official report discloses here that these increases were distributed as follows: automotive equipment, 69% up; drugs 8% up; tobacco and confectionery, 7% up; fruits and vegetables 4% up.

ISOLATED CONTROLS

"If there is one thing I have learned it is that you can't maintain isolated controls," said Finance Minister Abbott in Ottawa. "The only thing that works are overall controls, including wage controls. Overall controls, he added, would now not be feasible and may not be legal in peacetime."

W. Huntingdon W.M.S.

The October meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Post. Dinner was served to some 36 guests including Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, of Lakefield; Mrs. Bailey, of Stirling; and Mrs. Vanderwater, of Moira; also a number of ladies from Eggleton and a number of gentlemen. The president opened the meeting with the usual call-to-worship, Hymn 321, "A Better Day Is Coming", was sung followed by prayer by Mr. Ken Stewart.

Mrs. C. Wright read the Scripture Lesson, Psalm 107. Roll call was answered by 11 members and a number of visitors. Mrs. G. Cooke reported on the "Watchtower For India", and Mrs. E. Post for China. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved followed by the business period. Mrs. C. Wright was appointed delegate to the convention at Trenton, which was held on October 23rd. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Wilson's with Mrs. G. Cooke to prepare the programme.

A thanksgiving story read by Mrs. A. Wright followed by a few remarks from Mr. Stewart, Mrs. E. G. Bailey also spoke briefly. "Take Time To Be Holy", was sung. Mr. Stewart and Mrs. Fitchett favoured with a duet, "Jesus Is All The World To Me". A reading "The Puzzle of Life" was given by Mrs. A. Wright. Hymn 131 closed this pleasant and enjoyable meeting. The Thankoffering envelopes were also received and proceeds of dinner were $7.85.

Hastings County Represented At Plowing Match

Hastings County Juniors were very capably represented at the recent International Plowing Match, Kingston, by Gerald Eggleton, Belleville, R.R. No. 6, and Douglas Harry, Trenton R. R. No. 5.

At the Plowing Match the boys, in very strongly contested classes, took their share of the prize money. On Wednesday, Gerald Eggleton was second and Douglas Harry fifth in a class of forty-six plow boys. On Thursday Douglas Harry was again fifth in a class of forty in plowing sod. On Friday the two boys were entered in a very keen Inter-County competition in which the first prizes were a year's tuition, board and books to the Ontario Agricultural College. The standing was based on the total score of the two boys.

Hastings County made a very credible showing by placing third as a team, second only to Brant and York counties. The team was under the direction of A. O. Dalrymple, Agricultural Representative for Hastings County, who was also assisted by Mr. Gardham Tran, Markam, who was a former championship plowman.

Congratulations are extended to the two boys and it is hoped that the future even more young men in Hastings County will take on interest in this type of work.

Broad Family Holds Reunion

A family reunion of the Broad clan was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes as several of the party had not visited with each other for many years.

The party was in honor of the relatives from the West, Miss Margaret Livingstone, R.N., and her father, Mr. John Livingstone, Minnedosa, Manitoba; Mrs. Guy Lutz, McTaggart, Sask., and Mrs. Will Ranson, Yellowknife, Sask. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harper Broad, and Mr. G. Benway, Pleasant Bay, Concession; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald, Carrying Place; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bonny and Isobel, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Holmes, Marilyn and Melbourne and Mr. and Mrs. Morley Eaves of Kingston.

FARMERS WIN OVERSEAS TRIP

Glen McFaddin, of Millbank, Ont., seated on the tractor which won him a free trip to Britain, chats with runner-up Russell Hare, of Nanticoke, Ont. McFaddin won the Esso Champions class for tractors at the International Plowing Match at Kingston, and with it the trip and a gold medal, both provided by Imperial Oil Ltd., which sponsored the class. Silver medalist Hare also gets a free trip and both hope to take part in British plowing matches early next year.

Rawdon Farmer Loses Barn and Contents in Blaze

The large basement barn owned by William Matthews, 7th concession of Rawdon Township, was completely destroyed Friday evening, October 17th, by fire which also burned the season's crop of hay and grain and a threshing separator.

Threshing operations at the Matthews' farm had been completed that afternoon by William Maybee and the separator was still in the barn when at 6.30 Mr. Matthews turned on the lights to put the cows in the stable. When the current was turned on dust in the straw mow near an electric light bulb ignited and quickly the entire barn was aflame.

So quickly did the fire spread that there was no time for rolling the separator out of the barn while the entire season's crop for the 100-acre farm was consumed. Neighbors answering the alarm prevented the spread of the flames to other buildings.

Loss, including the threshing separator, was estimated at close to $10,000.

WHITE ROCK TRAIL

By J. Allan Dunn

CHAPTER XII

SYNOPSIS:—Will MacLeod unjustly accused of murder fled to White Rock with his sister, Dick Byrne on the way to deliver a message to Nipegosia was severely wounded and taken by Bill and Marion to their cottage. Bill left to hide in the cave. The Mountie soon arrived and mistook Dick Kinoceti, who had wounded Dick, left a guard at the cave and set out for White Rock. When he attempted to attack Marion the Mountie threw him out. Shortly after Dick regained consciousness, Kinoceti and his three friends started to attack the cottage.

"I left here for Stoney River Caves when I knew you were coming. I got there, crossed the river, unhitched, and was taking the dogs up to the cave with the hot spring to keep them warm and to wash their feet in the hot water after the bad going. My lead dog—she is a smart animal, and she doesn't fool with rabbits — spots something back of a clump of low evergreens.

"I've got the rifle in the case against the frost, but I had my automatic. I stirred up an Indian. Full-blood. Name of Suni. The dog kept snarling at him, and I called her off and marched Suni up to the cave.

"He wouldn't talk. It was plain he was spotted there to watch me. I talk Indian well enough, and I know enough about 'em to know that while they use the caves and like the one that's warm, even use the water, you wouldn't catch one of 'em alive in it after dark. They think spirits live there.

"Suni got uneasy around dusk. He wanted to bolt. There was my automatic, and there was Aurora, my lead dog. She was worth a battery right then. She watched him all the time.

"I had cold grub, and I didn't light a fire. I gave Suni some food, but he wouldn't eat. I couldn't blame him. I want to tell you that the noises that spring makes are a bit blood-curdling even when you know what causes them. But with the moon rising and shining in on those stalactites and stalagmites it's a great stage effect. One of the overheads fell and Suni leaped like a rocket.

"That finished him. He'd been mulling things over all the time, of course. He came clean. Kinoceti had left him to watch me, so he could claim the reward for giving me away to you — to the post. You were on the way. And Kinoceti was sore at Marion for something she had said to him once — though of course that was just a blind — and he was going to get even with her.

"Well, that settled it. I went after him hard for a few minutes. Aurora helped — a lot. He said that Kinoceti had stolen my knife and killed Regnier. The tribe knew it, but they would not give him away to a white man."

"Go on, MacLeod," said O'Rourke.

"I want to get at the finish of this."

"There's not much more. I got my things together. The dogs were a bit tired and hard to handle, but I harnessed them. I tied up Suni, and then Byrne showed. We left Suni for my lies dead — I will say what I have seen in the hole. I don't think he'll go back on the confession. You know the rest." "My hand's out to you, MacLeod," said O'Rourke. "You didn't know how I'd take this tale of Suni's. You'd have come anyway to help your sister." He peered out the window. "Say, I wonder if those devils — Come on!" He jumped toward the door. "I've an idea Nipegosia may be needing us!"

They heard groans when they got to the Conjuror's house. Kinoceti was right. He knew wizards. He and his men had crept in on the shaman unawares. Three of them: Kinoceti, another and a third breed, whose leg was bound up and who was none the more merciful for it. Kinoceti, too, was blood-stained.

Nipegosia had no time to use his tricks, to beat his drums, to go into a trance and throw his voice, using hidden knowledge.

He was only an old man in the rude hands of marauders and murderers. But he was Nipegosia! And he mocked them, even as they heated his iron skillet and threatened him. He mocked them when it seared his flesh, not deeply at first, by Kinoceti's orders. He cursed them, also, and almost made them give up their purpose. Only the "caribou" in them kept them to it, and Kinoceti's gibes. Even he had qualms that were part of his being, handed down to him from ancestors who believed in ghosts.

That superstition, the need to get away from White Rock, where the cursed sergeant of the Mounties had won out, where things had happened not at all according to his calculations, tied up with his mounting rage; made Kinoceti give an order.

"Set the pan on his belly! Burn the stomach out of him! He is only a man who claims he is a wizard. If you won't I will."

He seized the red-hot skillet from the top of the stove and lowered it. Nipegosia's will held firm. He would not tell about the gold, but he shrank from the glowing metal. He was very old — and he moaned while he strove to check those involuntary sounds from shame. But he was old and weak, and it was hard to control both mind and body.

"You won't talk? You won't?" shouted Kinoceti in a frenzy. "Then I'll broil you alive!"

The door was thrust open. A sudden gun barked. Kinoceti dropped the cherry red pan, whirling about, spinning like a run-down top, fell with a bullet in his brain.

O'Rourke, with his still smoking gun, Byrne and Will MacLeod covered the other two. There was a sickening smell of scorching flesh. O'Rourke lifted Kinoceti's head from the skillet with his foot. The two breeds cowered. Nipegosia shuddered and sat up. He could not stand yet. This had cut his last remaining tenure of life in half. Yet he was thankful.

"We'll send Marion over to him," suggested MacLeod. "Take these two birds along."

"Wait," said Nipegosia hoarsely. "Wait!" They should be killed. I hope the white man's justice sees them killed, since mine is no longer powerful. But — now that Kinoceti Byrne showed. We left Suni for my lies dead — I will say what I have seen in the hole. I don't think he'll go back on the confession. You know the killed Jacques Regnier. I, Nipegosia, say this, and can prove it at the white man's tribunal.

"I say more. These dogs came to me, seeking to find the secret of the white rock that carries gold and which the white men have lost. I gave it once to a kinsman, who is dead. I will give it again to those who have aided me. To the maid who is your sister, Maklodo, to you, and to this soldier of the white man's king."

"Not to me," said O'Rourke. "Regulations all against it. I'm turning my share over to Dick Byrne."

"Dick Byrne? Why to him? Not that he's not one swell chap; but I did not think you knew him," said Will MacLeod.

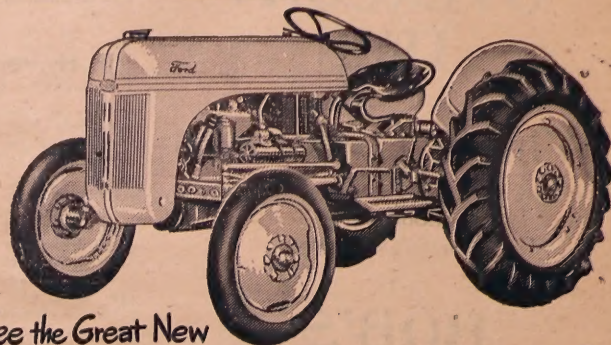

"Why? Because he's a good man," said O'Rourke convincingly. "Because I don't need it. Because it'll all stay in the family, where it belongs. Your sister is going to marry him. And more power to all of you! Walk out, ahead of me, you coyotes," he said to the breeds. "I haven't got handcuffs to go around, but we'll hogle you. I'll take that half-breed carcass out of here in a little while, Nipegosia," he added as he swanked out.

"More power to them — and more to you, Tim O'Rourke," he told himself. "You should be proud this day. You'll take back the man who killed Regnier. Dead, but delivered. You've got the glamour of a pair of blue eyes — bluer they are than ever Shannon flowed — out of your brain! There's an innocent man set free. A dower handed over. Dick Byrne will make her a fine husband. She'll set

HAGGERTY — McCLURE

The marriage of Margaret Janet daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McClure, Brampton, to Mr. James Barton Haggerty, son of Mrs. James Haggerty, West Huntingdon, was an interesting event in Brampton Presbyterian Church, on Saturday, October 25th. Rev. A. Neil Miller officiated, and Miss Janet McClure, cousin of the bride, played the wedding music.

A handsome gown of white broad-satin, with finger-tip veil, was worn by the bride, whose father gave her in marriage. She carried a bridal bouquet. Miss Helen McClure, bridesmaid for her sister, chose blue net with matching feather calot, and carried pink roses. Miss Margie Boake, niece of the groom, was junior bridesmaid, wearing turquoise net with a feather bonnet, and carrying a nosegay of tea roses. The groomsmen were Mr. Nelson Dean, and the ushers were Mr. Grenade Murray and Mr. C. Martin Roberts.

The reception was at the home of the bride's parents, and later the couple left on a trip, the bride travelling in a grey ensemble with wine accessories. They will live in West Huntingdon.

SINE—REID

A very lovely but quiet wedding was solemnized at Springbrook United Church Parsonage on Saturday, at 2.30 p.m., when Rev. P. H. Christensen united in marriage Evelyn May, youngest daughter of Mrs. John Reid and the late John Reid and Burton, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Sine, Harold.

The bride looked charming in a gown of Queen's blue crepe with nail-head trim with black accessories, and wore a corsage of red roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Ruth Morton, who was attired in a cerise wool frock with black accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. Mr. Ralph Thompson performed the duties of best man.

Guests at the marriage were Mrs. John Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Carman Sine, Mr. Glen Sine and Mr. B. C. Tucker.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. James Galloway, of Springbrook, announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence Helen, to David Allan Fargey, only son of Mr. Sam Fargey and the late Mrs. Fargey, of West Huntingdon; the marriage to take place in Springbrook United Church at 2 o'clock on Saturday, November 8th, 1947. 4-1

Springbrook United 65th Anniversary

The congregation of Springbrook United Church celebrated its sixty-fifth anniversary on Sunday last, with Rev. A. Lloyd Shorten, of Foxboro, as the guest speaker. Mr. Shorten delivered very inspiring sermons both at the morning and evening services. Special music by the choir added greatly to the helpful messages brought by him.

Large congregations were present at both morning and evening services, and collections for the day were most substantial. The choir under the direction of Mrs. John McKeown looked lovely in their new gowns which they wore for the first time, and were presented to them by the Junior Bible Class, of Springbrook Sunday School. The musical contribution made to these splendid services by the choir in the morning included two anthems "It Is Well With My Soul", and "He Leadeth Me." Mrs. George Williams rendered a solo, "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again."

Music at the evening service was an anthem, "Draw Me Nearer. Duet by Mrs. P. Christensen and Mrs. G. Bailey, "God Is Love". A quartette, "Lead Kindly Light." Mesdames P. Christensen and G. Bailey and Messrs. Orrie Barton and Frank Cosbey.

On Tuesday evening an anniversary supper was held in the Hall when over three hundred people sat down to tables laden with delicious food served by the W.A. This was followed by a concert at which Rev. P. H. Christensen acted as chairman in his usual jovial manner for the following programme. Piano duet "Over Hill and Vale," by Lois Mason and Barbara Melkjohn. A song by Helen and Johnny Christensen, Sandra Melkjohn and Edmund Fleming. Violin solo by Rev. P. H. Christensen, accompanied at the piano by Bruce Barnum; Duet by Miss Mina Dracup and Mrs. F. Beckett, "Appleblossom Wedding"; Musical number, by Benny and Ross Mason, trumpets, and Ross Hermlston, saxophone, accompanied at the piano by Miss Ida Ketcheson, "Bells of St. Mary's" and "Abide With Me"; Duet, "Bless This House", and "Danny Boy", by Miss G. Simpson and Mrs. D. Laine.
